Wellsville Water Shortage Nears Crisis

Wellsville, faced with the most critical water shortage in the city's history, went into action today to combat the emergency. Only a nine - day supply remains in the reservoir, city officials said.

Meantime, a general appeal was made to the residents, businesses and industries to conserve as much water as possible.

In a series of fast - moving events Thursday, a plan of action was put into operation to provide temporary relief and to obtain aid from county, state and federal authorities.

The preliminary groundwork for the necessary moves was prepared over the past few months and completed yesterday. The schedule yesterday included:

1. A meeting of city, county and state officials.
2. A complete reinvestigation of the past events.
3. Making arrangements for pumping operations that started this morning from a temporary source of water.
4. A special meeting of City Council to start necessary legislation to declare an emergency and obtain aid if the need materializes.

The city has been faced with a shortage at the reservoir since the long drought the past summer.

In November, Safety - Service Director Fred Baldasare was given the power to declare an emergency if needed. City officials previously asked residents to curtail the washing of cars and sprinkling of lawns. The director was given the power to make or direct citations if an emergency should arise and violations were found.

It was not necessary, however, for any citations to be issued as the majority of residents co-operated after the emergency was declared at that time.

The entire picture came to light during the Council meeting last night. Previously, the director had said that a meeting had been set up with state Civil Defense officials.

After hearing of the severity of the situation, Council gave the first reading to a resolution declaring a state of emergency. Not enough were present to enact the legislation under suspension of rules and another meeting was slated for Saturday night at 7 to adopt the legislation. The next step will be to present the resolution to Columbiana County commissioners.

Present were Councilmen Aguin Bowling, Meryle Kenney, Dwight MacLean, Paul Todd and Walter Henthorne, along with Mrs. Mary Rahter, Council president, Wayne J. Rose, clerk, Solicitor William Bush, Mayor William Daugherty and Baldasare.

Councilman Nunzio Lombardozzi was working and could not be present. There is one vacancy on Council at present. It takes six to pass legislation under suspension of rules or as an emergency measure.

The resolution declares the existence of the emergency condition due to the impending failure of the water supply. The city depends for its supply entirely on the reservoir located on the hillside above Little Yellow Creek.

Due to the prolonged drought, only a few days supply remains and unless heavy rains come, the entire supply will be exhausted, it is declared in the resolution. This would be a threat to the health, safety and welfare of the city of over 7,000.

The resolution further states the city has taken all reasonable and legal means to reduce consumption and eliminate the shortage and asserts assistance is needed from county, state, and federal authorities to obtain a temporary water supply.

Bowling said he and MacLean attended the meeting yesterday as representatives of Council. Bowling asked the mayor to re-

After Forays In New Hampshire

Goldwater, Rockefeller Both Express Confidence

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is very pleased with his reception and Sen. Barry Goldwater says "I think we have it made."

That was the reaction of the two avowed candidates for the Republican presidential nomination after their first campaign forays into New Hampshire, site of the nation's first preferential primary, March 10.

"Things are going about the way I expected them to," said Rockefeller Thursday night during a short visit to Manchester for a nonpolitical speech. He campaigned in the state last week.

"I'm convinced there's more enthusiasm now than before I made my announcement," Goldwater told newsmen as he left for Washington after three days of stumping the state. The Arizona senator added that the crowds he drew were "surprising and very encouraging."

Asked for comment on Goldwater's assessment, Rockefeller, governor of New York, told newsmen: "That's not the way I heard it."

Goldwater and Rockefeller used similar campaign tactics.

Both went along streets, introducing themselves to passersby, shaking hands and soliciting support.

Each made a formal speech —Rockefeller a week ago today in Portsmouth and Goldwater Wednesday in Manchester.

Crowds were good and enthusiastic at each candidate's formal appearance.

Early this fall, political observers gave Goldwater a strong lead over Rockefeller. Then came the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and some thought the senator slipped a little.

Today, the professionals indicated Goldwater was still ahead, the only question being by how much.

Round two starts when Rockefeller returns to the state next Thursday for a three-day stand. Goldwater comes back the following week.

'Faith In State's Delegation'

Goldwater Says He Won't Run In Ohio's Primary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater's strategy for winning the Republican presidential nomination apparently does not include entering Ohio's May 5 primary.

Goldwater has yet to state publicly that he has decided against the Ohio primary, in which Gov. James A. Rhodes will be a favorite son candidate.

But he was quoted Thursday night by the Ohioans for Goldwater as saying he will not enter.

"I will not run in the Ohio primary," the Arizona senator was quoted as saying by Dr. N. B. Livingston Jr. of Columbus, chairman of the Goldwater group. "I have faith in the process of delegate selection in Ohio."

Livingston said Goldwater also asked the Ohio group not to carry through with plans to line up national convention support in certain Ohio districts. He said Goldwater was assured that no such drive would occur.

Goldwater plans to speak at a luncheon here Saturday. Livingston said the senator thanked the Ohio group for its support and agreed to meet with members of the organization prior to his speaking engagement.

Livingston talked with Goldwater by telephone a few hours after the Ohioans for Goldwater announced it would try to line up delegates in certain Ohio districts. The group acted without Goldwater's knowledge or consent, Livingston said.

Goldwater, in announcing last Friday he would seek the Republican nomination, said he would enter the primaries in New Hampshire March 10, Oregon May 15 and California June 2. He is assured of a race against Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York in those primaries.

Later, he indicated he was considering the Ohio primary. This brought immediate statements of concern from State GOP Chairman Ray C. Bliss, who believes an intra-party primary struggle in Ohio would hurt chances of a GOP victory in November.

Search Given Up For Nine On Lost Plane

HONOLULU (AP)—Disheartened searchers finally have given up the hunt for nine men aboard an Air Force plane that vanished in the Pacific last week.

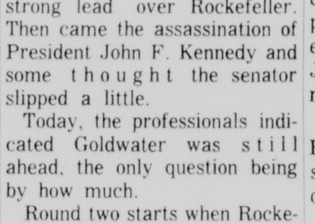
One of the men was M. Sgt. Herbert M. O'Malley, the father of 14 children who didn't have to make the flight. But his unit at Hill Air Force Base, Utah, home base of the plane, was short of men, so he put off his retirement and went along.

Eight of the men were Air Force crewmen on the C124 Globemaster cargo plane, and one was a sailor bound for discharge who volunteered to accompany a comrade's corpse to the mainland.

Mercury May Hit 6 Tonight In Cold Wave

Winter returned with a vengeance to the East Liverpool area today, bringing biting winds, a skim of snow and a new cold wave that may drop the mercury to 6 tonight. A slight warmup is due Saturday.

The sudden Arctic blasts were more uncomfortable because temperatures had reached a spring - like 57 Thursday noon. But they skidded fast last night as the frigid wave spread through the mid-section of the nation and sent temperatures to below zero in the northern area.



The downtown had over 50 degrees yesterday afternoon and this morning at 6 it was 17 degrees. It fell 2 degrees within an hour and the Ohio weatherman said tonight's low range will be 6 to 12 degrees.

The core of the cold air centered in the Dakotas and Minnesota with the mercury dipping 22 below zero in Aberdeen, S. D.

Readings of near zero to the teens were reported in other parts of the Midwest with temperatures in the 20s and 30s in wide sections in the central part of the country. The 20s were reported southward into sections of Texas and Kentucky.

Grand Jury Returns 43 Indictments

Arraignments Set Jan. 20 For 30 In Variety Of Cases

The Columbiana County Grand Jury returned 43 indictments against 30 defendants today in its report to Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard at Lisbon.

Arraignment for the defendants is scheduled Jan. 20.

In session since Tuesday, the jury examined witnesses in 48 cases. It ignored four complaints on grounds of insufficient evidence, one was returned to Juvenile Court and 18 indictments were secret.

Prosecuting Atty. G. William Brokaw and assistant, Atty. Joseph Baronzzi, were in charge of the four-day investigation.

In the customary inspection of the County Jail, the jury said it was exceptionally clean and well kept. Mrs. Mary Emma Mullen of East Liverpool was foreman of the jury of 13 women and two men.

The defendants and the charges:

Paul D. Mick, 21, of Bergholz R. D., and Edward L. Beadnell, 21, of Bergholz, carrying a concealed weapon—brass knuckles, Sept. 15, and John L. Mick, 27, of Bergholz, larceny in theft of six cans of beer from Kenneth Welch of East Liverpool, all Sept. 15.

City's Plant Sites Termed 'Unsuitable'

A representative of the Bobbie Brooks Co. was unable to find an available building that met the standards of the women's garment manufacturing firm in a visit to East Liverpool Thursday afternoon.

M. R. Gross met with Mayor Merrill D. Hall, Robert E. Vodrey, who takes over as safety-service director on Monday; Alvin T. Babb, chairman of the Community Improvement Corp., and E. R. Chandler, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The city and civic officials were advised the company is looking for a modern one - story building with approximately 20,000 square feet of space in which to locate a plant that eventually could employ up to 500 women.

The representative pointed out the firm must meet state requirements, including health standards, the mayor said.

One-Step Reduction On Withholding Rate

Johnson Plea For Tax Cut Likely To Win Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's plea for enactment of a one-step reduction in the income tax withholding rate appears likely to win congressional approval.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., a senior member of the Finance Committee now considering the $11 billion tax cut bill, told a reporter he thought the request would easily command the needed votes.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, who will head his branch's conferees on the measure, indicated in a separate interview that he was willing to support it.

As the bill passed the House and now stands in Finance, it provides for a cut in the present 18 per cent withholding rate to 15 per cent this year, with a new permanent level of 14 per cent to start in 1965.

Johnson wants a one-step drop to 14 per cent.

If Johnson's argument carries, a married man with wages of $120 a week who claims exemptions for himself, his wife and two children would get take-home pay increase of $2.80 a week. While $12.80 is now withheld for income tax, the figure would be reduced to $10 under a 14 per cent withholding rate.

The Senate committee continues its work on the bill today, with administration supporters hoping the fast pace of the last two days can be maintained.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., said Thursday: "I think we're really moving now — we've covered more than 60 pages" of the 310-page bill.

Johnson told a citizens committee plugging for the tax bill Thursday that he wants the measure passed by the Senate before that body gets tangled up in a filibuster over civil rights.

Every hour of delay on the tax measure "can keep many jobs away from many people for many weeks," the President declared.

CIA Unveils Report

Soviet Economy Woes Disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency says the Kremlin wants to buy large amounts of Western chemical machinery on long-term credit so as not to hamper Soviet arms production.

CIA's conclusion about Russia's economic woes were issued Thursday in CIA's first general press briefing since the secret agency was set up after World War II.

The United States has been trying to persuade its allies, so far unsuccessfully, to bar long term credit on Red purchases. But a CIA spokesman denied trying to influence policy by airing the agency's views publicly.

He said CIA's aim was to make public information gathered by its experts on a subject where the customary secrecy label could be removed without harm, and that CIA may give out further data later. It was understood President Johnson approved the action.

According to CIA's analysis, the Soviet economy has run into such deep trouble that Premier Khrushchev can achieve his chemical industry expansion goals by paring other programs or through long term credits from the West.

Soviet import requirements for Western chemical machinery and equipment, mainly to produce fertilizers, were estimated at $2 billion over the next few years. Credits from the industrial West totaled $600 million in 1962-63. Khrushchev's seven - year chemical industry expansion plan calls for a $46 billion investment over-all.

To Accuse Cigarettes

U.S. Report On Smoking Will Cite Health Hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government report on smoking and health to be made public Saturday is expected to point an accusing finger at cigarettes as a health hazard.

Unlike a 1959 report which dealt only with smoking and lung cancer, the new report prepared by a special committee of 10 nongovernment scientists will deal with all the effects of smoking on human health—on the lungs, heart, and circulatory system.

The conclusions will be based on scientific findings which in the main have been publicized previously.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry will hold a news conference to state the Public Health Service's position on the report, in the works 14 months.

Terry, who appointed the committee members, also is expected to outline plans for a second phase of the study — to be concerned with recommendations for action.

When the 1959 report was issued Leroy E. Burney, then the surgeon general, said in a state-

Clutter Bids For Hancock County Post

Chester Man Runs For Commissioner In Democrat Race

Alvin B. Clutter of Chester has entered Hancock County's primary May 12 as a Democratic candidate for county commissioner, creating a race for the Grant District post.

A resident of River Ave., Clutter, 41, was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Chester mayor in 1960.

He is the second Democratic candidate for county commissioner from Grant District. Also in the race is William C. Graham of Chester, the incumbent commissioner who is president of County Court.

Seven others entered the primary yesterday including two non-partisan candidates for the vacant Butler District seat on the County Board of Education.

With the filing deadline expiring midnight Feb. 1, the Republicans still are lagging and do not show a single contest to date. In all, only seven GOP candidates have filed, compared to 27 Democrats.

The Democrats have entered three candidates for county sheriff, two for prosecutor, two for assessor, two for county commissioner and four for House of Delegates. The GOP lists only one candidate each for sheriff and assessor.

Entering as candidates for Board of Education member from Butler District are Maynard S. Ferguson and Roger W. Wilson, both employes of the Weirton Steel Co.

Other Democrats who entered yesterday are:

W. G. (Bill) Brewer of Chester, for Grant District constable.

Riot Results When Panamanians Try To Hoist Their Flag

PANAMA (AP) — Panama suspended relations today with the United States after a night of gun battles between U.S. armed forces and rioting Panamanians that left at least 10 dead.

Three U.S. soldiers and seven Panamanians died in the violence—the worst in the history of U.S.-Panama differences in the Canal Zone. Rioters heavily damaged U.S. property.

Panama officials said they counted at least 190 injured, while the toll of wounded among the U.S. soldiers was 34.

Panama's government accused the United States of aggression and sent its case to international forums after rioting broke out when Panamanian demonstrators tried to plant their national flag in the Canal Zone.

Panama's ambassador to the United Nations, Aquilino Boyd, was en route to U.N. headquarters to file the charges of aggression with the U.N. Security Council.

In bitter words he told newsmen at Miami: "Panama has been the victim of unjustified oppression for 50 years."

He accused U.S. soldiers of causing unnecessary bloodshed.

President Roberto Chiari of Panama demanded that the Organization of American States launch an immediate investigation.

He vowed "to obtain justice for Panama once and for all" before whatever international bodies are necessary.

President Johnson was being kept advised of the situation.

At the Pentagon in Washington, a Defense Department spokesman said there are no plans to send troop reinforcements into the Canal Zone.

About 10,000 Army troops, plus a small number of Air Force, Navy and Marine personnel, are stationed there customarily.

The spokesman said the zone was quiet this morning, with schools closed and civilian residents instructed to stay in their homes.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry will hold a news conference to state the Public Health Service's position on the report, in the works 14 months.

Terry, who appointed the committee members, also is expected to outline plans for a second phase of the study — to be concerned with recommendations for action.

When the 1959 report was issued Leroy E. Burney, then the surgeon general, said in a state-

Clutter Bids For Hancock County Post

Chester Man Runs For Commissioner In Democrat Race

Alvin B. Clutter of Chester has entered Hancock County's primary May 12 as a Democratic candidate for county commissioner, creating a race for the Grant District post.

A resident of River Ave., Clutter, 41, was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Chester mayor in 1960.

He is the second Democratic candidate for county commissioner from Grant District. Also in the race is William C. Graham of Chester, the incumbent commissioner who is president of County Court.

Seven others entered the primary yesterday including two non-partisan candidates for the vacant Butler District seat on the County Board of Education.

With the filing deadline expiring midnight Feb. 1, the Republicans still are lagging and do not show a single contest to date. In all, only seven GOP candidates have filed, compared to 27 Democrats.

The Democrats have entered three candidates for county sheriff, two for prosecutor, two for assessor, two for county commissioner and four for House of Delegates. The GOP lists only one candidate each for sheriff and assessor.

Entering as candidates for Board of Education member from Butler District are Maynard S. Ferguson and Roger W. Wilson, both employes of the Weirton Steel Co.

Other Democrats who entered yesterday are:

W. G. (Bill) Brewer of Chester, for Grant District constable.

10 Killed, 190 Hurt In Gun Battles

Riot Results When Panamanians Try To Hoist Their Flag

PANAMA (AP) — Panama suspended relations today with the United States after a night of gun battles between U.S. armed forces and rioting Panamanians that left at least 10 dead.

Three U.S. soldiers and seven Panamanians died in the violence—the worst in the history of U.S.-Panama differences in the Canal Zone. Rioters heavily damaged U.S. property.

Panama officials said they counted at least 190 injured, while the toll of wounded among the U.S. soldiers was 34.

Panama's government accused the United States of aggression and sent its case to international forums after rioting broke out when Panamanian demonstrators tried to plant their national flag in the Canal Zone.

Panama's ambassador to the United Nations, Aquilino Boyd, was en route to U.N. headquarters to file the charges of aggression with the U.N. Security Council.

In bitter words he told newsmen at Miami: "Panama has been the victim of unjustified oppression for 50 years."

He accused U.S. soldiers of causing unnecessary bloodshed.

President Roberto Chiari of Panama demanded that the Organization of American States launch an immediate investigation.

He vowed "to obtain justice for Panama once and for all" before whatever international bodies are necessary.

President Johnson was being kept advised of the situation.

At the Pentagon in Washington, a Defense Department spokesman said there are no plans to send troop reinforcements into the Canal Zone.

About 10,000 Army troops, plus a small number of Air Force, Navy and Marine personnel, are stationed there customarily.

The spokesman said the zone was quiet this morning, with schools closed and civilian residents instructed to stay in their homes.

Water Supply Nears Crisis At Wellsville

The mayor said that a Civil Defense director was contacted about two months ago. A meeting was held at that time but nothing concrete resulted.

The situation has grown progressively worse, the mayor said.

Attending the session yesterday were Harry Stockdale, inspector with the County Board of Health; Donald Duke, city chemist, Leroy John of Columbus, CD field co-ordinator, and councilmen, the director and the mayor.

According to the best estimates that could be made, only about a nine - day supply remains in the reservoir, the mayor said. Along with those present yesterday, previous contact had been made with county commissioners and the county engineer's office, he said.

"This is the worst situation in the city's history," he said. Previously a check was made of the area behind the reservoir. Beaver dams were found and these were opened to allow the backed-up water to flow into the reservoir.

Further investigation showed two strip mine pits which appear to contain several million gallons of water, the mayor said.

The water was tested and found suitable for human consumption. The men will start pumping this water today, he said, extending the time before the city is without water.

If there is no help in the way of rain after the pits have been drained, the city either will have to run a line from East Liverpool or pump water from the Ohio River or a creek to the reservoir.

The main reason for the emergency is the great deal of "red tape" that must be cleared so the city can be ready to move should the situation become a reality, Daugherty said.

He pointed out there is pipeline stored at Marion, owned by the federal government. The legislation declaring the local emergency first must be presented to the county commissioners, who have agreed to act quickly once they receive the resolution, he continued.

The commissioners then pass legislation agreeing to the emergency and this is sent to Gov. James Rhodes. The governor then contacts the Civil Defense and this organization contacts the federal authorities for authorized use of the pipe.

All this is necessary to obtain use of the pipe. There will then be the expense of hauling it to Wellsville, having it installed and setting up the pumping operations, Daugherty said.

Todd commented that it sounded like a long drawn-out procedure and asked how long it would take. Bush said it would take only one or two days. He said he had talked with the commissioners and was assured they will meet immediately to act on the situation. The commissioners are scheduled to meet Monday, which would be enough time, Bush said.

Referring to the cost, Daugherty said he is anticipating much volunteer aid from various organizations and residents.

Todd then raised the question as to ownership of the water in the strip pits. Daugherty and Mrs. Rahter both commented the director had said he was certain the water could be obtained.

Baldasare arrived later and said that permission had been obtained for use of the water.

The mayor also said a campaign will be started to "jolt" the people into the realization of the severity of the condition.

He commented that he had been investigating various phases of the situation for some time.

At first it was thought that raw river water could be pumped into the city's mains by use of portable filtrators and chlorinators." But the only information we can get on this is that it is not feasible nor practical for the amount of water needed," he said.

State officials also pointed out that the portable filtrators would only pick up some of the solids. The State Board of Health and attorney general's office opposed this action because of possible lawsuits stemming from any illness which could be traced back to the water.

"If it could be attributed to the water, the city probably would have a flood of lawsuits on its hands," he said.

After this plan was abandoned, the mayor said other avenues of action were sought. The end result was the meeting yesterday.

Under normal conditions, the city uses an average of 780,000 gallons per day. Presently, the consumption is down to about 600,000 gallons, the mayor said, commenting that he believes the city could operate on 500,000 gallons.

After it was determined that the water from the strip pits could be used, Baldasare made arrangements to have the portable, gasoline - powered pumps, taken to the area. They were loaded on a large truck last night and were hauled to the reservoir this morning. From there, they will be carried to the pits.

Baldasare said the city owns one portable pump and the second was borrowed from the volunteer fire department. He said another can be obtained from the volunteers if needed. He also said he had checked with a Pittsburgh firm and found they have such pumps in stock which can be secured in a matter of hours.

About 100 feet of hose will be laid from the pumps to carry the water into the creek feeding into the reservoir.

Baldasare commented there is about 6 to 8 feet of useable water in the reservoir, according to best estimates. He said the water is below the gauge, which gives the depth.

John, the CD official, arrived in Wellsville Wednesday and stayed overnight to obtain all the information he needed and to attend the meeting yesterday.

Baldasare said the one pump that will be used can handle 500 gallons per minute.

Todd commented that according to an article he had read, the national average of necessary consumption for each person is 50 gallons per day.

The mayor said he would begin calling on industries and businesses today, asking them to co-operate in the curtailment of water usage and seek aid in setting up an emergency line.

"Personally, I feel a lot of water can be saved if the people know of the dire straits the city is in," he said.

The legal aspects of what a city can do during a state of emergency was discussed by Bush and those present last night. Bush commented later it was the first time such an emergency has come up in the city and he is not sure of the full extent of the city's legal powers in this matter, such as issuing citations, etc., to enforce curtailment of usage.

Ironically, there was a brief, heavy rain Thursday afternoon and it was raining while Council was in session. But, weather forecasts called for the rain to change to snow, which it did later.

Baldasare said after the meeting that there is at least a foot of snow on the hillsides that serve as the watershed for the reservoir and creek. A good, solid day of rain would melt this and aid tremendously, he said.

The past year was the driest on record, according to Ed Copeland of Millport, U. S. weather observor. The total rainfall for 1963 was a mere 26.15 inches, far below the normal 37 inches, he said recently in his annual report.

Over the state, the past 12 winters have been below normal for precipitation. The winter months are customarily the time when water tables are "recharged" and failure to obtain sufficient water in the soil has left area water tables at the lowest in history, according to Copeland.

All this points to the reason behind the shorage at Wellsville as the reservoir is "spring fed."

Another fear which has been voiced publicly in the past is the danger of a large fire and the drain on the water supply in fighntig it.

With cold weather, heating units sometimes are pushed to the point where they start fires. Residents are asked to be extremely cautious in this matter and not to use any type of open flame in thawing frozen water lines.

Transmission Stolen

SALINEVILLE — A four-speed transmission was stolen overnight from a 1963 sedan of Ronnie Brandonisio of W. Main St., Police Chief Roy Lewis reported this morning. Chief Lewis said this was the fourth transmission loss in the past eight months.

Midland Chamber Elects, Bares Plans For Dinner

The Midland Area Chamber of Commerce has elected six directors to two-year terms and has announced plans for an annual membership meeting and dinner Jan. 29.

Elected were Charles L. Finley, Mrs. Don Parker, Mrs. R. D. Paisley, Pete Tucker, Ernest Dostalik and Glenn Dawson. Directors with one year remaining on the board are: Charles R. Schmitt, Guy Ernest Gengarella, Howard Nophsker, Anthony Martell, Paul McGeehan and Margaret Boston.

Retiring directors are Mike Hornick, William Robertson, Marvin Bahm, Tom Fannin, William Kennedy and Fred G. Wilton.

The new board will meet next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the McGeehan Agency for its reorganization and election of officers.

Bahm is chairman for the dinner meeting which will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Willows Motel.

Billy Webb, comedian and impersonator, who has appeared three times at the Holiday House at Pittsburgh, will provide entertainment.

Members of the Chamber, their employes and guests are invited to attend. The dinner committee will personally contact Chamber members located on Midland Ave. for reservations. Other members will be contacted by mail.

Paul McGeehan reported that the Liberty Theater, closed for years, will re-open tonight. The board agreed to send flowers and congratulations to the theater management.

Howard Nophsker, Retail Division chairman, reported on a recent sales promotion and announced future plans for his committee.

Gengarella reported there were many favorable comments on the Christmas street decorations, which were expanded this year. He thanked his committee "for a tremendous job".

At the request of the Chamber, it was reported that the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. will beautify the company area at the east end of the borough. The Chamber had made the request due to an increase in traffic and visitors anticipated when the new Midland-Shippingport Bridge opens.

Schmitt, president, presided. Next month's regular meeting of the board will be Feb. 12.

Plans For Vote On Levy Are Spurred At Chester

Further plans for a special election Feb. 4 on a proposed special levy for the Chester City Park were made during a joint meeting of the Park Commission and Central Committee Thursday night at the park's community building.

R. M. McFarland, a co-chairman of the committee, requested the committee urge members of their organizations to vote for the levy, amounting to a 50-cent monthly assessment for three years and providing some $6,000 annually for the park.

Mrs. Harold Ossman, also a co-chairman, announced circulars will be distributed house-to-house presenting a park history and plans for future development.

Lloyd Mansfield, the third co-chairman, spoke briefly about the election.

The City Hall will be the only voting place, to be staffed by volunteer workers.

Twenty-five attended from 14 organizations.

vailed in the cold belt but fairly heavy snow was reported in parts of Michigan. Snow also was reported in northern Ohio and in sections of the Great Lakes. East Liverpool had hardly half an inch.

In the Northwest, snow depths of one to 2 inches were reported in scattered interior sections, with rain in coastal areas.

The weekend warming trend will bring rain or snow Sunday and again Tuesday and Wednesday, with temperatures returning to near normal except colder again Monday.

The snow was light in the rural areas but the State Highway Department garage at Leetonia reported much drifting as a result of the heavy wind.

The department sent out 16 cindering crews about midnight after reports of icing conditions and they remained on the job through this morning, principally because of the continual drifting.

Because city street crews were diverted to ashing and salting streets, the annual collection of Christmas trees will be delayed, Street Supt. W. M. Laughlin said.

Two crews were called out at 11:30 p. m. after police advised Laughlin that the rain and snow were making the streets icy.

The crews worked throughout the night and continued work this morning on spreading ashes, particularly at some intersections on grades.

The department may be able to resume its tree collection Saturday morning but will not finish the job until sometime Monday.

Parked Cars Struck By Hit-Skip Motorist

A Beechwood resident told police that both his parked cars were damaged by a hit-skip motorist Thursday night near his home.

Robert I. Lutton Jr., 161 Vernia St., said the left sides of his 1956 station wagon and 1954 sedan were scraped lightly shortly before midnight.

Lutton said he heard motorists having a difficult time getting up the hill and then heard a noise. When he investigated, he found both his cars had been struck. They were parked about 40 feet south of Reynolds St.

ment: "Unless the use of tobacco can be made safe, the individual person's risk of lung cancer can best be reduced by the elimination of smoking.

Further, Burney said the weight of evidence implicated smoking — particularly cigarette smoking—as the principal causative factor in the increased incidence of lung cancer.

The tobacco industry claims, however, that a causative connection between smoking and impaired health has not been proved.

In a report released Thursday at Greensboro, N.C., the nation's tobacco companies claimed the vast majority of smokers suffer no serious impairments of health or shortening of life.

A Health Service spokesman said the new government report will be mailed to every physician and osteopath in the country. It also will be sent to all governors, state health officials, and to officials of other interested organizations.

The committee was asked to study not only the impact of smoking on health but also all other factors that may be involved, such as air pollution and automobile exhausts.

Water Supply Nears Crisis At Wellsville

The mayor said that a Civil Defense director was contacted about two months ago. A meeting was held at that time but nothing concrete resulted.

The situation has grown progressively worse, the mayor said.

Attending the session yesterday were Harry Stockdale, inspector with the County Board of Health; Donald Duke, city chemist, Leroy John of Columbus, CD field co-ordinator, and councilmen, the director and the mayor.

According to the best estimates that could be made, only about a nine - day supply remains in the reservoir, the mayor said. Along with those present yesterday, previous contact had been made with county commissioners and the county engineer's office, he said.

"This is the worst situation in the city's history," he said. Previously a check was made of the area behind the reservoir. Beaver dams were found and these were opened to allow the backed-up water to flow into the reservoir.

Further investigation showed two strip mine pits which appear to contain several million gallons of water, the mayor said.

The water was tested and found suitable for human consumption. The men will start pumping this water today, he said, extending the time before the city is without water.

If there is no help in the way of rain after the pits have been drained, the city either will have to run a line from East Liverpool or pump water from the Ohio River or a creek to the reservoir.

The main reason for the emergency is the great deal of "red tape" that must be cleared so the city can be ready to move should the situation become a reality, Daugherty said.

He pointed out there is pipeline stored at Marion, owned by the federal government. The legislation declaring the local emergency first must be presented to the county commissioners, who have agreed to act quickly once they receive the resolution, he continued.

The commissioners then pass legislation agreeing to the emergency and this is sent to Gov. James Rhodes. The governor then contacts the Civil Defense and this organization contacts the federal authorities for authorized use of the pipe.

All this is necessary to obtain use of the pipe. There will then be the expense of hauling it to Wellsville, having it installed and setting up the pumping operations, Daugherty said.

Todd commented that it sounded like a long drawn-out procedure and asked how long it would take. Bush said it would take only one or two days. He said he had talked with the commissioners and was assured they will meet immediately to act on the situation. The commissioners are scheduled to meet Monday, which would be enough time, Bush said.

Referring to the cost, Daugherty said he is anticipating much volunteer aid from various organizations and residents.

Todd then raised the question as to ownership of the water in the strip pits. Daugherty and Mrs. Rahter both commented the director had said he was certain the water could be obtained.

Baldasare arrived later and said that permission had been obtained for use of the water.

The mayor also said a campaign will be started to "jolt" the people into the realization of the severity of the condition.

He commented that he had been investigating various phases of the situation for some time.

At first it was thought that raw river water could be pumped into the city's mains by use of portable filtrators and chlorinators." But the only information we can get on this is that it is not feasible nor practical for the amount of water needed," he said.

State officials also pointed out that the portable filtrators would only pick up some of the solids. The State Board of Health and attorney general's office opposed this action because of possible lawsuits stemming from any illness which could be traced back to the water.

"If it could be attributed to the water, the city probably would have a flood of lawsuits on its hands," he said.

After this plan was abandoned, the mayor said other avenues of action were sought. The end result was the meeting yesterday.

Under normal conditions, the city uses an average of 780,000 gallons per day. Presently, the consumption is down to about 600,000 gallons, the mayor said, commenting that he believes the city could operate on 500,000 gallons.

After it was determined that the water from the strip pits could be used, Baldasare made arrangements to have the portable, gasoline - powered pumps, taken to the area. They were loaded on a large truck last night and were hauled to the reservoir this morning. From there, they will be carried to the pits.

Baldasare said the city owns one portable pump and the second was borrowed from the volunteer fire department. He said another can be obtained from the volunteers if needed. He also said he had checked with a Pittsburgh firm and found they have such pumps in stock which can be secured in a matter of hours.

About 100 feet of hose will be laid from the pumps to carry the water into the creek feeding into the reservoir.

Baldasare commented there is about 6 to 8 feet of useable water in the reservoir, according to best estimates. He said the water is below the gauge, which gives the depth.

John, the CD official, arrived in Wellsville Wednesday and stayed overnight to obtain all the information he needed and to attend the meeting yesterday.

Baldasare said the one pump that will be used can handle 500 gallons per minute.

Todd commented that according to an article he had read, the national average of necessary consumption for each person is 50 gallons per day.

The mayor said he would begin calling on industries and businesses today, asking them to co-operate in the curtailment of water usage and seek aid in setting up an emergency line.

"Personally, I feel a lot of water can be saved if the people know of the dire straits the city is in," he said.

The legal aspects of what a city can do during a state of emergency was discussed by Bush and those present last night. Bush commented later it was the first time such an emergency has come up in the city and he is not sure of the full extent of the city's legal powers in this matter, such as issuing citations, etc., to enforce curtailment of usage.

Ironically, there was a brief, heavy rain Thursday afternoon and it was raining while Council was in session. But, weather forecasts called for the rain to change to snow, which it did later.

Baldasare said after the meeting that there is at least a foot of snow on the hillsides that serve as the watershed for the reservoir and creek. A good, solid day of rain would melt this and aid tremendously, he said.

The past year was the driest on record, according to Ed Copeland of Millport, U. S. weather observor. The total rainfall for 1963 was a mere 26.15 inches, far below the normal 37 inches, he said recently in his annual report.

Over the state, the past 12 winters have been below normal for precipitation. The winter months are customarily the time when water tables are "recharged" and failure to obtain sufficient water in the soil has left area water tables at the lowest in history, according to Copeland.

All this points to the reason behind the shorage at Wellsville as the reservoir is "spring fed."

Another fear which has been voiced publicly in the past is the danger of a large fire and the drain on the water supply in fighntig it.

With cold weather, heating units sometimes are pushed to the point where they start fires. Residents are asked to be extremely cautious in this matter and not to use any type of open flame in thawing frozen water lines.

Every President Must Choose

Voters wouldn't need to mark their ballots at all next November if President Johnson could keep all the promises in his first State of the Union message.

He has promised to do everything good, nothing bad.

Eliminate poverty and reduce taxes. Take better care of everybody with fewer employes. Make the nation stronger with a smaller military budget. Settle the civil rights fight without quarreling with Southern reactionaries. Give medical insurance at minimum cost to everybody without taking anything out of the U.S. Treasury. Permit more foreign goods to be sold here and create more jobs for U.S. workers.

Our new President, one of the most knowledgeable men who ever moved into the White House, knows he is promising opposites. He is hopeful of bringing off a political trick many observers are betting he can perform — be both a conserver and a dispenser between now and next election day.

IF HE CAN CREATE the image of being a budget balancer, a penny-pincher and a fiscal hatchet man and also appear to be a New Dealer and a Fair Dealer, he will have done what every politician aspires to do — be all things to all men.

If he could maintain such an illusion until next November, his victory would be a shoo-in. There wouldn't be anything to stop him. Voters would give him the presidency by popular acclamation.

The question is how long the illusion can be maintained.

Every president eventually must bid for favor as a spender or a saver. No president can be both.

There has been a series of spenders, starting with President Hoover, who was criticized by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 for being too open-handed. As president, however, Mr. Roosevelt outstripped all previous spenders.

Harry Truman might have been a saver had it not been for the Korean War. But Dwight D. Eisenhower, after promising to be a saver, became a spender, and John F. Kennedy, who never promised to be a saver, outdid himself as a spender.

President Johnson, politically, would like to be both. But as an administrator he must be one or the other.

THIS IS the weak point of his first State of the Union address. It revealed far more about the state of Lyndon B. Johnson than it revealed about the state of the Union.

Mr. Johnson is bidding for favor with both spenders and savers. He cannot please them both in the long run.

Whether the run will be long enough to carry him past next Nov. 3 is the key question in his presidential race against a Republican nominee who must run as a saver.

After all, what Republican nominee could go beyond President Johnson's promise to eliminate pvoerty itself?

Let Barry Goldwater Run

We wish Ray C. Bliss, Ohio Republican chairman, would welcome Sen. Barry Goldwater into the Ohio presidential primary instead of trying to discourage him from entering.

If Ohio Republicans are trying to slow down Sen. Goldwater with favorite-son strategy, they are only paying him the ultimate tribute in the political profession.

Are they afraid of his power in an open primary?

The word is that the Republican hierarchy is trying to avoid an open fight for convention delegates.

We always thought that was what a primary was designed to do — to test the strength of candidates and the sentiment of party voters.

The primary is a system of opinion-testing which gives the party rank-and-file a chance to register its performances in advance of party conventions.

THIS GIVES FITS to some of our political professionals, because in their version of politics the rank-and-file should have nothing to say about such things.

The key fact is that primaries can be used to advantage by a candidate with strong popular appeal. Strong candidates have nothing to fear. Weak candidates do. Many weak candidates have come croppers in primary.

Wendell Wilkie wound up his political career in Wisconsin in 1944 with a bad showing in a presidential primary. Harold Stassen tangled disastrously with Thomas E. Dewey in Oregon and Robert A. Taft in Ohio.

Conversely, John F. Kennedy used Wisconsin to spring himself into a front-running position in Wisconsin and West Virginia in 1960. Dwight D. Eisenhower was off and running in 1952 after the New Hampshire primary.

A presidential hopeful can kill his chances with a bad showing, or he can make them with a good showing.

WE DO NOT KNOW whether Sen. Goldwater would make a good or bad showing in the Ohio Republican presidential primary next May 5. We think he is entitled to a chance to find out how he stands with Ohio Republicans, and we feel that Republican Chairman Bliss is misrepresenting his party when he tries to freeze him out.

We heartily endorse the idea of a "favorite son" candidacy for Gov. James A. Rhodes. It is an honor which he richly deserves. But we question the wisdom of trying to keep Sen. Goldwater or any other prospective candidate out of the state Republican primary.

We don't think the privilege of going to the GOP convention in a bargaining position next summer is worth a primary freeze-out in May.

Dear Nephew: You never can be sure. It says in tonight's paper Jack Dempsey denies his hands were encased in plaster of paris when he knocked out Jess Willard at Toledo.

The delightful thing about his denial is that the late Jack Kearns, who claimed for a sports magazine he soaked the Manassa Mauler's bandages in plaster of paris before they were put on, says he never told his fighter what he'd done.

That left Jack Dempsey in the clear, and Jack Kearns is dead. To keep everything shipshape, Dempsey now says Jess Willard can still think of himself as the champion if it makes him feel better. Jess now is 82.

Stories like this fascinate me.

IF YOU WAIT long enough there always is an eager market for the seamy side of past events.

This is the fact that creates the eager market.

Some go through their whole lives believing only the best. Others see nothing but the worst. The rest of us fluctuate.

I believed at the time of the Willard-Dempsey fight that the defending champion would be beaten. When it happened I was not surprised.

If Dempsey's hand-wrappings could have had enough plaster of paris in them to make any difference, I still think he could have won with ordinary bandages. It's like saying the Chicago Bears were wearing heavy underwear when they beat the New York Giants.

Kearns was capable of the trick. Willard's second, who examined the bandages, could have been bribed. That would have been in keeping with the scurvy nature of the fight game.

SO WHY bring it up now?

Because of that eager market for the seamy side. People who want to believe the worst will shell out.

The valuable element, uranium, never occurs in its pure form in nature, but is always combined with other substances to form a mineral. More than 100 uranium-bearing minerals are known to exist. In some of these, uranium is the chief constituent, but in others it forms only a very small part of the whole.

Pitchblende, a source of radium, is a rare black or brown oxide of uranium found with ores of lead, silver, and tin. The major sources of pitchblende are in Canada, Czechoslovakia, and the Belgian Congo.

Railroad Strike Is Expected

By Victor Riesel

Insiders at the White House and experts in the field are expecting a railroad strike in late February or March.

Victor Riesel

It won't be a national stoppage paralyzing the country, which rail brotherhood leaders have been predicting publicly. It "merely" will cripple parts of the land. It will be a selective strike of one key line in the East and one road in the West.

There simply is no way to stop such a walkout after midnight Feb. 24 except a new law by Congress. President Johnson would have to go up the Hill to fight for it. He does not want to do this just as he swings his new administration into high gear.

He would have to ask for an anti-strike law if the five operating (on-train) unions corked up all the lines. So their strategy will be to avert presidential action by refraining from jeopardizing the security and economic welfare of the United States.

The embattled rail union chiefs reckon that, by stalling two important lines, they'll make their point and still not provoke either the Congress or the President.

THE LABOR LEADERS are serious in their strike threat. As early as last October, Roy Davidson, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, flatly asserted:

"We intend to score a real victory on these other issues. If we don't, I'm willing to guarantee that there will be a crisis that will make the one this past summer look like a Sunday school picnic."

What are "these other issues"?

They are the work rules changes demanded by the railroads. Observers recall that when the steel industry demanded rules changes in their plants in '59, the steelworkers went out for 116 days.

There is a basic issue inside an issue here. If the railroads win their point, they will have established "the right, philosophically" of the employer to make demands in negotiations for a cutback in union standards enjoyed in previous contracts.

There are important union demands, too. But first, here is an analysis of the rules changes they are fighting.

THE COMPANIES say they have the right to use crews interchangeably inside the yard and over the road. They charge that union objections to this cost, the lines many millions of dollars.

For example, here is the case of the Chicago and Northwestern road. For half a century, say the railroad people, the line used yard engines to give its long freight trains a shove to get them started faster.

Then the rail unions charged that this was road work, not yard work. If so, this would mean being paid twice—a day's wages for road operations and a day's pay for yard work—or two days pay for the same crew of the engine which did the shoving.

This dispute went to arbitration. The ruling favored the union. The decision said that the two days' simultaneous pay would have to be made for each shove.

THE RAILROAD operators also cite the Burlington's 1,034 mile run between Chicago and Denver. Eight train crews are needed. The lines say that this costs them a day and a quarter's pay for each crew member for every two hours of running time.

Now the lines want the rules changed so they can use yard and road crews interchangeably and lengthen the duration of runs.

On the other side, the brotherhoods have grievances of their own. Their members do not get expenses for time spent laying over between train runs away from home. They claim that this is costly, since the intervals range anywhere from a few hours to the better part of a day.

They state that theirs is the only industry which does not pay overtime after eight hours. They want it. They are asking for special differential pay for the night shifts and for Sunday and holiday premium pay.

THE UNION'S slogan is: The other industries have such benefits, why not ours?

No one has figured the cost of these so-called "secondary issues" — secondary to the fight over the size of crews and the use of firemen on oil-burning Diesel locomotives. But the pay and rules issues are not secondary. They involve sums ranging up to a billion dollars a year, according to one government official.

The railroads have the right to institute most of the rules changes they seek. The unions now have the right to strike. White House sources believe the brotherhoods will walk out to ward off such changes in traditional railroad operations.

For Lyndon Johnson the crisis could not come at a worse time.

The Utopian State

By David Lawrence

We Appear Both 'Rich' And 'Poor'

President Johnson has just delivered to Congress not so much a message on the state of the union as an alluring description of a utopian state.

David Lawrence

The President spoke of the "unprecedented progress of our free - enterprise economy over the last three years," and said that wages, profits and family income are "at their highest level in history." He nevertheless thought it necessary to declare "unconditional war on poverty in America."

Though speaking of the United States as "the richest nation on earth," Mr. Johnson, even more than his predecessor, emphasized poverty as a national problem. He did not define this explicitly, but in general terms. He said his purpose was "to help that one-fifth of all American families with incomes too small even to meet their basic needs."

The question remains, however, as to what are really the "basic needs" and what persons can accurately be described as poverty-stricken.

THE PRESIDENT seems to think that the cause of the poverty is "in a lack of education and training, in a lack of medical care and housing, in a lack of decent communities in which to live and bring up their children." But, surprisingly enough, the President made no mention of weakness in individual character and, in many cases, an inherited incapacity to equal the achievements of one's average fellow man.

No doubt there are communities in which poverty occurs, just as their are "distressed areas" where some unemployment prevails and relief should be provided. It's regrettable that not enough emphasis has been placed upon individual responsibility and also on the most effective way to create jobs. The President rightly said:

"For the war against poverty will not be won here in Washington. It must be won in the field—in every private home, in every public office, from the courthouse to the White House."

There was one omission. Mr. Johnson did not mention the need to remove the barriers that the private - enterprise system faces every day in the creation of new jobs.

About the only reference to job creation in the President's speech was the mention of the $11-billion tax reduction over the next two years.

HE SPOKE of it as providing "investment incentives." But in the same address to Congress the President repeated an error which has often been noted in past administration policies—namely, a recommendation that laws be passed which cannot but have the effect of frustrating the development of the free-enterprise system.

Mr. Johnson recommended legislation, for example, to authorize the creation of committees on an industry-by-industry basis which would have the authority to put into effect higher rates for overtime. The theory is that this would serve as a penalty for use of overtime and create more jobs. But to tell the managers of free enterprise in America that they must eliminate overtime in order to create new jobs is equivalent to telling them that they must accept government dictation in work schedules or pay higher rates for unavoidable overtime.

There are many industries in which a few hours of overtime work is all that is necessary. In those cases where one or two shifts — with perhaps a small amount of overtime—can perform the required work, it seems incredible that any business would, on its own, choose to use large amounts of overtime at rates of time-and-a-half per hour when a new shift of employes can be put on at the regular wage rates.

THE PROPOSAL illustrates the tendency to deal with questions on the basis of economic partisanship. For the increase of overtime rates is something which the unions have advocated, not necessarily to produce more jobs but to increase the income of the regular employes. In most instances, the effect probably would be to give higher incomes to the regular employes who work overtime rather than to create places for new workers.

There were many proposals in the President's address, nearly all couched in very general terms. The statement of the aims of the United States in foreign policy is in line with that of preceding administrations. There have always been proclamations of high purpose—to curtail and even abolish big armament, to enlarge world trade, and to strengthen the ability of free nations to raise their standard of living through an efficient foreign-aid program. The big difficulty is in the method and formula to be used to accomplish such high-sounding purposes. Thus, the President declared that the United States "must be constantly prepared for the worst and constantly acting for the best."

He added that we "must be strong enough to win any war, and we must be wise enough to prevent one."

So there really was no new contribution to international policy. In fact, there was little new on the domestic side either. While the President promised "a progressive administration which is efficient and honest and frugal," the budget in the coming fiscal year will involve a deficit of $4.9 billion.

IT'S TRUE that the earlier estimates were higher, but, unfortunately, a fiscal system is not measured by the size of the estimates or the theoretical economies achieved when estimates are finally cut down.

The fact remains that America is to run on a deficit budget in the years to come, and not a single word in the President's message gave any indication of when a balanced budget will be achieved. So the people of the United States are asked to continue to accept the platitudes of hopefulness—that some day the millenium will arrive.

Every President Must Choose

Voters wouldn't need to mark their ballots at all next November if President Johnson could keep all the promises in his first State of the Union message.

He has promised to do everything good, nothing bad.

Eliminate poverty and reduce taxes. Take better care of everybody with fewer employes. Make the nation stronger with a smaller military budget. Settle the civil rights fight without quarreling with Southern reactionaries. Give medical insurance at minimum cost to everybody without taking anything out of the U.S. Treasury. Permit more foreign goods to be sold here and create more jobs for U.S. workers.

Our new President, one of the most knowledgeable men who ever moved into the White House, knows he is promising opposites. He is hopeful of bringing off a political trick many observers are betting he can perform — be both a conserver and a dispenser between now and next election day.

IF HE CAN CREATE the image of being a budget balancer, a penny-pincher and a fiscal hatchet man and also appear to be a New Dealer and a Fair Dealer, he will have done what every politician aspires to do — be all things to all men.

If he could maintain such an illusion until next November, his victory would be a shoo-in. There wouldn't be anything to stop him. Voters would give him the presidency by popular acclamation.

The question is how long the illusion can be maintained.

Every president eventually must bid for favor as a spender or a saver. No president can be both.

There has been a series of spenders, starting with President Hoover, who was criticized by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 for being too open-handed. As president, however, Mr. Roosevelt outstripped all previous spenders.

Harry Truman might have been a saver had it not been for the Korean War. But Dwight D. Eisenhower, after promising to be a saver, became a spender, and John F. Kennedy, who never promised to be a saver, outdid himself as a spender.

President Johnson, politically, would like to be both. But as an administrator he must be one or the other.

THIS IS the weak point of his first State of the Union address. It revealed far more about the state of Lyndon B. Johnson than it revealed about the state of the Union.

Mr. Johnson is bidding for favor with both spenders and savers. He cannot please them both in the long run.

Whether the run will be long enough to carry him past next Nov. 3 is the key question in his presidential race against a Republican nominee who must run as a saver.

Invention of the popular ice cream soda is attributed to Robert M. Green, a concessionaire at the Franklin Institute exposition in Philadelphia in 1874. One day he ran out of sweet cream, hastily bought some vanilla ice cream and threw it into a mixture of syrup and carbonated water. His customers didn't wait for the ice cream to melt and so an American tradition was born.

The Utopian State

By David Lawrence

We Appear Both 'Rich' And 'Poor'

David Lawrence

President Johnson has just delivered to Congress not so much a message on the state of the union as an alluring description of a utopian state.

The President spoke of the "unprecedented progress of our free - enterprise economy over the last three years," and said that wages, profits and family income are "at their highest level in history." He nevertheless thought it necessary to declare "unconditional war on poverty in America."

Though speaking of the United States as "the richest nation on earth," Mr. Johnson, even more than his predecessor, emphasized poverty as a national problem. He did not define this explicitly, but in general terms. He said his purpose was "to help that one-fifth of all American families with incomes too small even to meet their basic needs."

The question remains, however, as to what are really the "basic needs" and what persons can accurately be described as poverty-stricken.

THE PRESIDENT seems to think that the cause of the poverty is "in a lack of education and training, in a lack of medical care and housing, in a lack of decent communities in which to live and bring up their children." But, surprisingly enough, the President made no mention of weakness in individual character and, in many cases, an inherited incapacity to equal the achievements of one's average fellow man.

No doubt there are communities in which poverty occurs, just as their are "distressed areas" where some unemployment prevails and relief should be provided. It's regrettable that not enough emphasis has been placed upon individual responsibility and also on the most effective way to create jobs. The President rightly said:

"For the war against poverty will not be won here in Washington. It must be won in the field—in every private home, in every public office, from the courthouse to the White House."

There was one omission. Mr. Johnson did not mention the need to remove the barriers that the private - enterprise system faces every day in the creation of new jobs.

About the only reference to job creation in the President's speech was the mention of the $11-billion tax reduction over the next two years.

HE SPOKE of it as providing "investment incentives." But in the same address to Congress the President repeated an error which has often been noted in past administration policies—namely, a recommendation that laws be passed which cannot but have the effect of frustrating the development of the free-enterprise system.

Mr. Johnson recommended legislation, for example, to authorize the creation of committees on an industry-by-industry basis which would have the authority to put into effect higher rates for overtime. The theory is that this would serve as a penalty for use of overtime and create more jobs. But to tell the managers of free enterprise in America that they must eliminate overtime in order to create new jobs is equivalent to telling them that they must accept government dictation in work schedules or pay higher rates for unavoidable overtime.

There are many industries in which a few hours of overtime work is all that is necessary. In those cases where one or two shifts — with perhaps a small amount of overtime—can perform the required work, it seems incredible that any business would, on its own, choose to use large amounts of overtime at rates of time-and-a-half per hour when a new shift of employes can be put on at the regular wage rates.

THE PROPOSAL illustrates the tendency to deal with questions on the basis of economic partisanship. For the increase of overtime rates is something which the unions have advocated, not necessarily to produce more jobs but to increase the income of the regular employes. In most instances, the effect probably would be to give higher incomes to the regular employes who work overtime rather than to create places for new workers.

There were many proposals in the President's address, nearly all couched in very general terms. The statement of the aims of the United States in foreign policy is in line with that of preceding administrations. There have always been proclamations of high purpose—to curtail and even abolish big armament, to enlarge world trade, and to strengthen the ability of free nations to raise their standard of living through an efficient foreign-aid program. The big difficulty is in the method and formula to be used to accomplish such high-sounding purposes. Thus, the President declared that the United States "must be constantly prepared for the worst and constantly acting for the best."

He added that we "must be strong enough to win any war, and we must be wise enough to prevent one."

So there really was no new contribution to international policy. In fact, there was little new on the domestic side either. While the President promised "a progressive administration which is efficient and honest and frugal," the budget in the coming fiscal year will involve a deficit of $4.9 billion.

IT'S TRUE that the earlier estimates were higher, but, unfortunately, a fiscal system is not measured by the size of the estimates or the theoretical economies achieved when estimates are finally cut down.

The fact remains that America is to run on a deficit budget in the years to come, and not a single word in the President's message gave any indication of when a balanced budget will be achieved. So the people of the United States are asked to continue to accept the platitudes of hopefulness—that some day the millenium will arrive.

Woman Hurt In Car Crash

Icy streets were blamed for a two-car crash which injured a Wellsville woman this morning about 8 while she was en route home after taking a daughter to school.

Wellsville police said the collision on 15th St. involved cars driven by Mrs. Margaret Baldwin, 47, of 1708 Maple St., former clerk of City Council, and Sam Malone of 18th St.

Mrs. Baldwin sustained lacerations of the lip and left leg, and possible rib injuries. She was in "fair" condition at City Hospital, where she was taken in the cruiser of Police Chief John Hephner.

Malone was unhurt in the crash, which police blamed on icy roads. Mrs. Baldwin's car began sliding on ice as she was driving on 15th St., and Malone was coming in the opposite direction.

Mrs. Baldwin, who ended her services as clerk of Council Tuesday night, is a nurse's aide at City Hospital.

Hit-Skip Mishap Damages Auto Of Newell Resident

A Newell man's car was damaged by a hit-skip driver in one of two traffic mishaps investigated early today by the Hancock County sheriff's office.

Deputies said the unidentified motorist damaged the left front fender, bumper and grill of a 1957 car of Donald Sams, 1008 Washington St., Newell at 4:05 a.m.

The auto was parked on Washington St. near 10th St., and the accident may have happened while the unidentified driver was making a turn at the intersection, deputies said. They estimated $150 damage to Sams' car.

Cars driven by Elva Tavletic, 52, of Aliquippa and Domenic G. Ruffa Jr., 27, of Warminster, Pa., collided at 1:50 this morning on State Route 2, north of Pughtown. The woman was charged with driving left of center.

Louisiana's Vote Set On Governor Bid

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A former New Orleans mayor who speaks French when campaigning in the Cajun country and a onetime lieutenant in the fabled Long political dynasty go before Louisiana voters Saturday for the Democratic nomination for governor.

The winner will meet the Republican nominee in a general election in March. But in this Deep South state the nomination has amounted to election since Reconstruction days, and there's little reason to expect anything different this year.

The runoff candidates for the Democratic nomination:

DeLesseps Morrison, 51, a four-time mayor of New Orleans making his third bid for governor. Morrison was President Kennedy's ambassador to the Organization of American States, resigning to make the race for governor. He led the field of 10 in the first primary last month.

John McKeithen, 45, a State Public Service commissioner and onetime legislative floor leader for the late Gov. Earl Long. McKeithen campaigned as an old-line ally of the faction founded by Huey Long.

Man's Traffic Death Ruled As Accidental

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The death of a Youngstown, Ohio, man in a tractor-trailer truck crash was accidental, an Allegheny County coroner's jury has ruled. The jury made its ruling Thursday in the death of Paul A. Morris, 26, a helper on the truck.

Skid Mishap Injures Trio

LISBON — Three were hurt in a Salem area mishap early today — one of two Route 14 skidding mishaps investigated by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

A car operated by Carmen Nocera, 38, of Salem skidded on the highway about a mile east of Salem at 12:40 a.m. and crossed the road in the path of an approaching car driven by Donald E. Myers, 27, of Greenford.

Myers was unable to stop, and skidded into the halted Nocera car. Nocera suffered a possible fracture of the shoulder.

Myers received a cut lip and bruised chest, and a passenger in his car — Michael Cozar, 48, of Salem — suffered cuts of the face. All were taken to Salem City Hospital.

Neither was injured, the patrol said.

Officers reported area roads became hazardous last night from freezing rain and snow. Roads remained slick over night and until the salt crews began work or until the sun started to melt the coating.

Cited In Damage Suit

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An Ohioan has been named in a $10,000 damage suit as a result of a traffic accident Jan. 15 near Burgettstown. The suit against Clarence Steelman of Wintersville, Ohio, claims his car skidded and blocked the highway, causing a crash in which Carl Millsap of Marianna, a truck driver, was killed.

Hit-Skip Mishap Damages Auto Of Newell Resident

A Newell man's car was damaged by a hit-skip driver in one of two traffic mishaps investigated early today by the Hancock County sheriff's office.

Deputies said the unidentified motorist damaged the left front fender, bumper and grill of a 1957 car of Donald Sams, 1008 Washington St., Newell at 4:05 a.m.

The auto was parked on Washington St. near 10th St., and the accident may have happened while the unidentified driver was making a turn at the intersection, deputies said. They estimated $150 damage to Sams' car.

Cars driven by Elva Tavletic, 52, of Aliquippa and Domenic G. Ruffa Jr., 27, of Warminster, Pa., collided at 1:50 this morning on State Route 2, north of Pughtown. The woman was charged with driving left of center.

Louisiana's Vote Set On Governor Bid

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A former New Orleans mayor who speaks French when campaigning in the Cajun country and a onetime lieutenant in the fabled Long political dynasty go before Louisiana voters Saturday for the Democratic nomination for governor.

The winner will meet the Republican nominee in a general election in March. But in this Deep South state the nomination has amounted to election since Reconstruction days, and there's little reason to expect anything different this year.

The runoff candidates for the Democratic nomination:

DeLesseps Morrison, 51, a four-time mayor of New Orleans making his third bid for governor. Morrison was President Kennedy's ambassador to the Organization of American States, resigning to make the race for governor. He led the field of 10 in the first primary last month.

John McKeithen, 45, a State Public Service commissioner and onetime legislative floor leader for the late Gov. Earl Long. McKeithen campaigned as an old-line ally of the faction founded by Huey Long.

Man's Traffic Death Ruled As Accidental

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The death of a Youngstown, Ohio, man in a tractor-trailer truck crash was accidental, an Allegheny County coroner's jury has ruled. The jury made its ruling Thursday in the death of Paul A. Morris, 26, a helper on the truck.

Skid Mishap Injures Trio

LISBON — Three were hurt in a Salem area mishap early today — one of two Route 14 skidding mishaps investigated by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

A car operated by Carmen Nocera, 38, of Salem skidded on the highway about a mile east of Salem at 12:40 a.m. and crossed the road in the path of an approaching car driven by Donald E. Myers, 27, of Greenford.

Myers was unable to stop, and skidded into the halted Nocera car. Nocera suffered a possible fracture of the shoulder.

Myers received a cut lip and bruised chest, and a passenger in his car — Michael Cozar, 48, of Salem — suffered cuts of the face. All were taken to Salem City Hospital.

Neither was injured, the patrol said.

Officers reported area roads became hazardous last night from freezing rain and snow. Roads remained slick over night and until the salt crews began work or until the sun started to melt the coating.

Boys Quizzed In Slaying Of Their Parents

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Two teen-age boys were being questioned early today in connection with the ambush killing of their parents, both of whom were shot in the back at their farm home near Granville in Licking County.

Sheriff John Koontz said no charges had been filed against Danny Leasure, 15, and his 17-year-old brother, Herman David, but he added: "I'm not looking for suspects at this time."

Authorities found the bodies of Herman Leasure, 45, and his wife, Jean, 33, late Thursday after Danny called the Sheriff's Office and reported they had been shot.

Herman was not home when deputies arrived. He was found later and brought to the Sheriff's Office here along with his brother.

Koontz quoted the younger brother as saying he was upstairs late Thursday when he heard two shots. He came downstairs and found his mother lying in the living room, then went outside and found his father in the barn, the sheriff quoted him as saying.

Both youths are high school students at Granville, about four miles south of the 192-acre farm.

Leasure had been shot in the back at the base of the neck. His wife apparently was standing at the kitchen when a bullet struck her in the back. The sheriff said she apparently staggered into the living room before falling.

There were no signs of a struggle by either victim. Koontz said he virtually had ruled out robbery as the motive.

A small caliber weapon, perhaps a .22, probably was the murder weapon, Koontz said.

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. Army plane crashed in the city of Ca Mau today killing two Vietnamese civilians and injuring seven, an American spokesman reported.

City Income Tax Forms Now In Mail

The income tax department has started mailing forms to all taxpayers whose city income tax is not withheld by employers, D. G. Wilkinson, tax commissioner, said today.

Wilkinson said about 500 letters are being mailed daily with approximately 4,500 to receive the forms.

The letters contain both the final report forms and forms for estimating 1964 earnings.

Both the final report for last year and the 1964 estimate must be returned by April 15. A payment equal to at least a fourth of the total estimated tax for 1964 must accompany the declaration, Wilkinson declared.

A penalty must be applied for late payment, he added.

Wilkinson urged taxpayers to bring the forms with their statements of 1963 earnings to the tax office in the basement of City Hall and allow the department's personnel to complete them.

If the completed forms are mailed to the office, it will be necessary for the taxpayer to enclose either a statement of earnings, a final pay stub for 1963 showing accumulated earnings for the year or a sworn statement from a public accountant certifying to the accuracy.

The procedure is necessary so the office can accurately audit each account, he explained. All statements of earnings and pay stubs will be returned by mail to the taxpayer.

West Virginia's Turnpike Called 'Most Dangerous'

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — The West Virginia Turnpike is the most dangerous toll road in the nation, according to statistics of the National Safety Council.

Latest figures show an average of 9.4 deaths occur on the 85.9-mile turnpike for each 100 million vehicle miles traveled, compared with a national average of 2.4 deaths.

In a little more than nine years since the turnpike opened, there have been 105 traffic deaths, the latest five recorded in Wednesday's collision of a post office van and a flatbed tractor-trailer.

In 1962, the National Safety Council reports, the turnpike recorded an average of 11.4 deaths per 100 million miles, so the 1963 mark of 9.4 shows a significant drop. Reports are for the first 11 months of each year only.

The New Hampshire Turnpike is second in fatalities with an average of 5.4 per 100 million vehicle miles and the Kentucky Turnpike third with a 5.3 average.

A spokesman for the National Safety Council said the best gauge of the turnpike's lead in accident headlines is the total number of accidents recorded.

Here, the national average is 101.3 accidents per 100 million miles, and the West Virginia Turnpike had an average of 162.8 last year. This was far ahead of the next highest, the New York Throughway, with an average of 131.9. The Kansas Turnpike was third at 131.2.

The turnpike was opened in November of 1954 and no deaths were recorded during the remainder of that calendar year. The highest total for any one year was 16 in 1959. The low was three deaths in 1960.

The National Safety Council spokesman said the structure of the West Virginia Turnpike — primarily two-lane with no median strip while most other toll roads are four-lane, divided highways — is the probable reason for its high accident and fatality rate.

City Income Tax Forms Now In Mail

The income tax department has started mailing forms to all taxpayers whose city income tax is not withheld by employers, D. G. Wilkinson, tax commissioner, said today.

Wilkinson said about 500 letters are being mailed daily with approximately 4,500 to receive the forms.

The letters contain both the final report forms and forms for estimating 1964 earnings.

Both the final report for last year and the 1964 estimate must be returned by April 15. A payment equal to at least a fourth of the total estimated tax for 1964 must accompany the declaration, Wilkinson declared.

A penalty must be applied for late payment, he added.

Wilkinson urged taxpayers to bring the forms with their statements of 1963 earnings to the tax office in the basement of City Hall and allow the department's personnel to complete them.

If the completed forms are mailed to the office, it will be necessary for the taxpayer to enclose either a statement of earnings, a final pay stub for 1963 showing accumulated earnings for the year or a sworn statement from a public accountant certifying to the accuracy.

The procedure is necessary so the office can accurately audit each account, he explained. All statements of earnings and pay stubs will be returned by mail to the taxpayer.

West Virginia's Turnpike Called 'Most Dangerous'

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — The West Virginia Turnpike is the most dangerous toll road in the nation, according to statistics of the National Safety Council.

Latest figures show an average of 9.4 deaths occur on the 85.9-mile turnpike for each 100 million vehicle miles traveled, compared with a national average of 2.4 deaths.

In a little more than nine years since the turnpike opened, there have been 105 traffic deaths, the latest five recorded in Wednesday's collision of a post office van and a flatbed tractor-trailer.

In 1962, the National Safety Council reports, the turnpike recorded an average of 11.4 deaths per 100 million miles, so the 1963 mark of 9.4 shows a significant drop. Reports are for the first 11 months of each year only.

The New Hampshire Turnpike is second in fatalities with an average of 5.4 per 100 million vehicle miles and the Kentucky Turnpike third with a 5.3 average.

A spokesman for the National Safety Council said the best gauge of the turnpike's lead in accident headlines is the total number of accidents recorded.

Here, the national average is 101.3 accidents per 100 million miles, and the West Virginia Turnpike had an average of 162.8 last year. This was far ahead of the next highest, the New York Throughway, with an average of 131.9. The Kansas Turnpike was third at 131.2.

The turnpike was opened in November of 1954 and no deaths were recorded during the remainder of that calendar year. The highest total for any one year was 16 in 1959. The low was three deaths in 1960.

The National Safety Council spokesman said the structure of the West Virginia Turnpike — primarily two-lane with no median strip while most other toll roads are four-lane, divided highways — is the probable reason for its high accident and fatality rate.

Out Of The Air

By ALAN GILL

Two Guys And A Blonde, Musical Chain Gang

When you're setting out the table for the marvelous folk singing trio that calls itself Peter, Paul and Mary, you'd better start with place cards. Thus:

Alan Gill

Peter is Peter Yarrow, a young, serious-faced New Yorker, a Cornell graduate, a guitarist of note, the possessor of a smooth tenor voice and — well, if this particular chain gang has a work foreman, then Peter Yarrow is the man.

PAUL is Paul Stookey, a tall, gentle-voiced fellow who does the baritoning, the comedy pattering and some of the song writing for the group. He's from Birmingham, Mich., Michigan State U. and the cellar joints of Greenwich Village, N.Y. Like Peter, he strums a sweet guitar and grows hair on his chin.

The long, straight, yellow hair in the middle belongs to a self-possessed and totally inspiring blonde named Mary Allin Travers, who used to sing loud but doesn't any more. She's from Louisville, Ky., a "lot of progressive schools" and the Art Institute of N.Y. Her wee daughter, Erica, is a giggly, bubbly miniature of mama, to the tips of her tinseled hair.

"WE USED to take Erica on our tours," Mary was saying the other day. "And the four of us running for a plane — a tall, stringy blonde; a very tiny, stringly blonde who could belong only to the big one; Paul loping along with his guitar over his back to protect him from Erica; and Peter was his guitar and his beard — made quite a conversation piece for the other passsengers. We were never at a loss for company."

Peter, Paul and Mary have been conversation pieces for 2½ years now. And we'll be talking about them even more once they've appeared on "The Jack Benny Program" next Tuesday night (Channel 9 at 9:30).

"NORMALLY," Paul said, "we're introduced on television as 'young folk singers' and we get a medley of three songs to do and we're off.

"This one's a departure. We've got a situation-comedy routine, wherein Benny is trying to peddle us a folk song — a song he's been trying to sell to Montevani, Helen Traubel and others for years — and we don't buy.

"We've also got a Benny-type thing that we wrote the melody to, called "Waukengan." And we get to sing "Blowin' in the Wind.'"

Mary — and we've come to expect the same thing from every guest on the Benny show — interrupted Paul from time to time to offer paeans to Old Boy Jack.

"The most marvelous man alive!" "Most beautiful human being that's ever been!" Stuff like that.

BUT IF JACK BENNY is permitting Peter, Paul and Mary to demonstrate a little of their versatility on TV for the first time, it will be no news to audiences who have heard them on campuses or in civic concerts.

"We like to see whole families out there," Paul said. "We offer them songs ranging from 'Puff the Magic Dragon' for the kid to 'It's Raining' for Grandpa to 'If I Had a Hammer' and 'Blowin' in the Wind." Folk songs have many faces."

There is both a geometric complexity and a blender smoothness to their singing; and Peter, in explaining it, threw a good many technicalities at a visitor, the air crackling with "intervals," "major triads," "suspensions," "dissonances," "diminished and augmented chords."

But he insisted that each member of the group retained his individuality.

PAUL SAID: "We don't sing, look or move in the same way. Esthetically, though, we agree. The agreement sometimes come after a long and involved free-for-all.

"I remember it took two full afternoons to agree on 'Bamboo.' In the beginning, we just started to sing — 'My home's across the river, my home's across the river,' etc. — Mary and I doing it in a breathless way and Peter soft.

"We had different ideas about it, who this fellow was who was singing, and what he meant by his words. And was he an exile, with this home of his across the river?

"We decided he was a little earthier than we'd been making him, but not a pick-swinging buffoon, either. In a way, we all moved toward the middle. We'd each of us been a little wrong about it.

"Of the three, Peter, I guess, makes his domain felt the most. He's the most consistently disciplined. And God help us if he ever gets lazy!"

Can You Lighten Social Calories?

Let's take a refreshing approach to social calories. Dieters, you can develop a built-in slimming system that approximates magic.

Ida Jean Kain

First, you make a decision that covers all occasions. Social eating is at least 90 per cent attitude. Once you get into the spirit of the thing, it's fairly easy to give calories the light touch. Why? Because it is what you want to do.

Do you agree that how much you eat of party fare is largely up to you?

At any social affair you can take modest servings, decline seconds and go light on dessert. Right? Or you can take advantage of the chance to indulge generously in delicious food on the pretext that you cannot offend your hostess.

SHIFTING THE BLAME to the hostess is a way of rationalizing so that you can do what you want to do. For example, what do you say when seconds are passed? If you protest, wistfully commenting, "Oh, I really shouldn't...not that it isn't delicious..." you are using a stock phrase that is an open invitation, almost a plea, for the hostess to urge you to partake. It's not easy to be strictly honest with yourself, but it's a bracing experience.

If you go to numerous affairs where food and drink are served lavishly, it is necessary to make a decision that covers all occasions. The reward of making a blanket decision regarding what you want to do is that this decision automatically goes into effect. From then on it doesn't take will power to say, "No thank you." It is a built-in habit. This is the mature way of dealing with calories on any occasion.

I invite you to entertain a challenging idea. Pay your hostess the subtle compliment of assuming she will graciously accept a "No, thank you." On the calorie score, most hostesses today are completely understanding. Granted, she has gone to considerable trouble to prepare inviting food for you and the other guests. Our idea of hospitality has not changed. But what is changing is the attitude of the modern hostess? On the calorie score she is up-to-date. Her gracious attitude lets her guests feel free to take as much or as little as they choose.

STILL, HEARTY hospitality is deeply ingrained in our heritage and many a hostess feels it is a breach of etiquette not to urge more food on her guests. But when she does, a gracious "No, thank you" is honored. No problem.

Of course, it could be I have a biased view. Hostesses never expect this dietitian to overeat. If you bristle at this column, let's have your views. There is nothing like a spirited controversy to clear the air What is your concept regarding social calories?

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Speech Handicap Can Cause Shyness

Often in this column I have pointed out that the child who does not speak properly is handicapped when he enters school. Other children there may make remarks that will have serious effects upon him. Writes a mother from Ohio: "Your column has given me ever so much help in the rearing of my three children. Now can you help my daughter who has a problem with her child?

Dr. Garry Meyers

"Her 5-year-old boy is a leader among his friends but so shy in school. He loves his teacher (in fact his loyalty to her drove him to run home recently when he saw there was a substitute in her place) and likes to go to kindergarten, but is very bashful.

—:—

"HIS TEACHER says he closes his eyes when he visits another classroom. He does have a slight defect in his speech. Could this be the cause?"

Enclosing my bulletins in her stamped envelope, "The Child Who Is Shy" and "The Young Child's Speech", I wrote her about like this:

Since your child seems to be comfortable with his playmates around home it is highly probable that he is shy at school because of the way other children respond to his defective speech. The children around home who have grown up with him might not notice it.

You say he is a leader among his friends. I wonder if they are about of his age or perhaps younger. If they are younger, he might easily be their leader but feel the difference with classmates of his age, and still more self - conscious around older children at school.

Perhaps the teacher the son likes could be prevailed on to let him take responsibilities for certain little jobs about the classroom which don't require speech but do help him feel worthwhile.

SECRETLY WRITE down over several days words he does not say properly and distinctly. Find opportunities to use these words in conversation with him. Read a lot to him, selecting some rhymes and prose containing a few of the troublesome words.

If the boy has an older brother or sister, this child could help him. Often an older child can help in this direction more than a parent — or even a speech therapist.

At quiet, relaxed, companionable moments, you might induce this child to say after you some of the words he has trouble with.

But don't correct his speech before other persons. Aim to keep him from feeling self-conscious about the matter even when alone with you.

One final but important note —It might be well to have his hearing checked by an expert.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's civil rights commission —for the first time—will conduct a public hearing on charges of racial discrimination at a swimming pool.

The commission ordered the hearing Thursday which involves a pool in Portage County. Its location and the identity of the owner will not be disclosed until the owner is served with a complaint, said Ellis L. Ross, executive director of the commission.

Ross said the commission has conducted hearings previously which involved public lands, such as parks, where there was a pool. But he said this is the first case where a pool only is involved.

The commission disposed of several other cases at its meeting Thursday but decided on a public hearing in only the one case.

Probe Of Nursing Home Fire Due To Be Completed Today

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—The Huron County grand jury's investigation of a nursing home fire near Fitchville last November that took the lives of 63 patients was expected to be completed today.

Robert W. Pollack, president of Golden Age, Inc., the firm that owned the home, was one of the witnesses Thursday. He was accompanied by Max Friedler, an associate in the corporation, and Nicholas Catri of Sandusky, the corporation's attorney.

The grand jury will decide whether criminal charges are called for as a result of the Nov. 23 fire.

Pollack was one of about a dozen witnesses called by the grand jury since its investigation started Tuesday.

Prosecutor Bernard W. Friedman said the probe probably would end today following testimony by Mrs. Ruth Shepherd, administrator of the Golden Age Nursing Home, and Wendell Sweet, an insurance investigator.

Saturday's emergency session of the Ohio Public Health Council in Columbus, which was scheduled to consider proposals for tightening fire regulations at nursing homes, has been canceled and will be held Jan. 18, the regular meeting day.

A spokesman said the delay was necessary because George Compson, the State Health Department's chief legal adviser, was called to testify before the grand jury here. Without him, the emergency regulations could not be drafted in time, it was explained.

The emergency regulations are intended to govern the operation of nursing homes until a set of regulations, which have been tied up three years in the courts, is freed.

Out Of The Air

By ALAN GILL

Two Guys And A Blonde, Musical Chain Gang

When you're setting out the table for the marvelous folk singing trio that calls itself Peter, Paul and Mary, you'd better start with place cards. Thus:

Alan Gill

Peter is Peter Yarrow, a young, serious-faced New Yorker, a Cornell graduate, a guitarist of note, the possessor of a smooth tenor voice and — well, if this particular chain gang has a work foreman, then Peter Yarrow is the man.

PAUL is Paul Stookey, a tall, gentle-voiced fellow who does the baritoning, the comedy pattering and some of the song writing for the group. He's from Birmingham, Mich., Michigan State U. and the cellar joints of Greenwich Village, N.Y. Like Peter, he strums a sweet guitar and grows hair on his chin.

The long, straight, yellow hair in the middle belongs to a self-possessed and totally inspiring blonde named Mary Allin Travers, who used to sing loud but doesn't any more. She's from Louisville, Ky., a "lot of progressive schools" and the Art Institute of N.Y. Her wee daughter, Erica, is a giggly, bubbly miniature of mama, to the tips of her tinseled hair.

"WE USED to take Erica on our tours," Mary was saying the other day. "And the four of us running for a plane — a tall, stringy blonde; a very tiny, stringly blonde who could belong only to the big one; Paul loping along with his guitar over his back to protect him from Erica; and Peter was his guitar and his beard — made quite a conversation piece for the other passsengers. We were never at a loss for company."

Peter, Paul and Mary have been conversation pieces for 2½ years now. And we'll be talking about them even more once they've appeared on "The Jack Benny Program" next Tuesday night (Channel 9 at 9:30).

"NORMALLY," Paul said, "we're introduced on television as 'young folk singers' and we get a medley of three songs to do and we're off.

"This one's a departure. We've got a situation-comedy routine, wherein Benny is trying to peddle us a folk song — a song he's been trying to sell to Montevani, Helen Traubel and others for years — and we don't buy.

"We've also got a Benny-type thing that we wrote the melody to, called "Waukengan." And we get to sing "Blowin' in the Wind.'"

Mary — and we've come to expect the same thing from every guest on the Benny show — interrupted Paul from time to time to offer paeans to Old Boy Jack.

"The most marvelous man alive!" "Most beautiful human being that's ever been!" Stuff like that.

BUT IF JACK BENNY is permitting Peter, Paul and Mary to demonstrate a little of their versatility on TV for the first time, it will be no news to audiences who have heard them on campuses or in civic concerts.

"We like to see whole families out there," Paul said. "We offer them songs ranging from 'Puff the Magic Dragon' for the kid to 'It's Raining' for Grandpa to 'If I Had a Hammer' and 'Blowin' in the Wind." Folk songs have many faces."

There is both a geometric complexity and a blender smoothness to their singing; and Peter, in explaining it, threw a good many technicalities at a visitor, the air crackling with "intervals," "major triads," "suspensions," "dissonances," "diminished and augmented chords."

But he insisted that each member of the group retained his individuality.

PAUL SAID: "We don't sing, look or move in the same way. Esthetically, though, we agree. The agreement sometimes come after a long and involved free-for-all.

"I remember it took two full afternoons to agree on 'Bamboo.' In the beginning, we just started to sing — 'My home's across the river, my home's across the river,' etc. — Mary and I doing it in a breathless way and Peter soft.

"We had different ideas about it, who this fellow was who was singing, and what he meant by his words. And was he an exile, with this home of his across the river?

"We decided he was a little earthier than we'd been making him, but not a pick-swinging buffoon, either. In a way, we all moved toward the middle. We'd each of us been a little wrong about it.

"Of the three, Peter, I guess, makes his domain felt the most. He's the most consistently disciplined. And God help us if he ever gets lazy!"

Can You Lighten Social Calories?

Let's take a refreshing approach to social calories. Dieters, you can develop a built-in slimming system that approximates magic.

Ida Jean Kain

First, you make a decision that covers all occasions. Social eating is at least 90 per cent attitude. Once you get into the spirit of the thing, it's fairly easy to give calories the light touch. Why? Because it is what you want to do.

Do you agree that how much you eat of party fare is largely up to you?

At any social affair you can take modest servings, decline seconds and go light on dessert. Right? Or you can take advantage of the chance to indulge generously in delicious food on the pretext that you cannot offend your hostess.

SHIFTING THE BLAME to the hostess is a way of rationalizing so that you can do what you want to do. For example, what do you say when seconds are passed? If you protest, wistfully commenting, "Oh, I really shouldn't...not that it isn't delicious..." you are using a stock phrase that is an open invitation, almost a plea, for the hostess to urge you to partake. It's not easy to be strictly honest with yourself, but it's a bracing experience.

If you go to numerous affairs where food and drink are served lavishly, it is necessary to make a decision that covers all occasions. The reward of making a blanket decision regarding what you want to do is that this decision automatically goes into effect. From then on it doesn't take will power to say, "No thank you." It is a built-in habit. This is the mature way of dealing with calories on any occasion.

I invite you to entertain a challenging idea. Pay your hostess the subtle compliment of assuming she will graciously accept a "No, thank you." On the calorie score, most hostesses today are completely understanding. Granted, she has gone to considerable trouble to prepare inviting food for you and the other guests. Our idea of hospitality has not changed. But what is changing is the attitude of the modern hostess? On the calorie score she is up-to-date. Her gracious attitude lets her guests feel free to take as much or as little as they choose.

STILL, HEARTY hospitality is deeply ingrained in our heritage and many a hostess feels it is a breach of etiquette not to urge more food on her guests. But when she does, a gracious "No, thank you" is honored. No problem.

Of course, it could be I have a biased view. Hostesses never expect this dietitian to overeat. If you bristle at this column, let's have your views. There is nothing like a spirited controversy to clear the air What is your concept regarding social calories?

Send long stamped, self - addressed envelope for Eat To Build Leanness. Address request to Ida Jean Kain, care of The Review. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Speech Handicap Can Cause Shyness

Often in this column I have pointed out that the child who does not speak properly is handicapped when he enters school. Other children there may make remarks that will have serious effects upon him. Writes a mother from Ohio: "Your column has given me ever so much help in the rearing of my three children. Now can you help my daughter who has a problem with her child?

Dr. Garry Meyers

"Her 5-year-old boy is a leader among his friends but so shy in school. He loves his teacher (in fact his loyalty to her drove him to run home recently when he saw there was a substitute in her place) and likes to go to kindergarten, but is very bashful.

—:—

"HIS TEACHER says he closes his eyes when he visits another classroom. He does have a slight defect in his speech. Could this be the cause?"

Enclosing my bulletins in her stamped envelope, "The Child Who Is Shy" and "The Young Child's Speech", I wrote her about like this:

Since your child seems to be comfortable with his playmates around home it is highly probable that he is shy at school because of the way other children respond to his defective speech. The children around home who have grown up with him might not notice it.

You say he is a leader among his friends. I wonder if they are about of his age or perhaps younger. If they are younger, he might easily be their leader but feel the difference with classmates of his age, and still more self - conscious around older children at school.

Perhaps the teacher the son likes could be prevailed on to let him take responsibilities for certain little jobs about the classroom which don't require speech but do help him feel worthwhile.

SECRETLY WRITE down over several days words he does not say properly and distinctly. Find opportunities to use these words in conversation with him. Read a lot to him, selecting some rhymes and prose containing a few of the troublesome words.

If the boy has an older brother or sister, this child could help him. Often an older child can help in this direction more than a parent — or even a speech therapist.

At quiet, relaxed, companionable moments, you might induce this child to say after you some of the words he has trouble with.

But don't correct his speech before other persons. Aim to keep him from feeling self-conscious about the matter even when alone with you.

One final but important note —It might be well to have his hearing checked by an expert.

Ohio Rights Unit Will Air Charge

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's civil rights commission —for the first time—will conduct a public hearing on charges of racial discrimination at a swimming pool.

The commission ordered the hearing Thursday which involves a pool in Portage County. Its location and the identity of the owner will not be disclosed until the owner is served with a complaint, said Ellis L. Ross, executive director of the commission.

Ross said the commission has conducted hearings previously which involved public lands, such as parks, where there was a pool. But he said this is the first case where a pool only is involved.

The commission disposed of several other cases at its meeting Thursday but decided on a public hearing in only the one case.

Probe Of Nursing Home Fire Due To Be Completed Today

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—The Huron County grand jury's investigation of a nursing home fire near Fitchville last November that took the lives of 63 patients was expected to be completed today.

Robert W. Pollack, president of Golden Age, Inc., the firm that owned the home, was one of the witnesses Thursday. He was accompanied by Max Friedler, an associate in the corporation, and Nicholas Catri of Sandusky, the corporation's attorney.

The grand jury will decide whether criminal charges are called for as a result of the Nov. 23 fire.

Pollack was one of about a dozen witnesses called by the grand jury since its investigation started Tuesday.

Prosecutor Bernard W. Friedman said the probe probably would end today following testimony by Mrs. Ruth Shepherd, administrator of the Golden Age Nursing Home, and Wendell Sweet, an insurance investigator.

Saturday's emergency session of the Ohio Public Health Council in Columbus, which was scheduled to consider proposals for tightening fire regulations at nursing homes, has been canceled and will be held Jan. 18, the regular meeting day.

A spokesman said the delay was necessary because George Compson, the State Health Department's chief legal adviser, was called to testify before the grand jury here. Without him, the emergency regulations could not be drafted in time, it was explained.

The emergency regulations are intended to govern the operation of nursing homes until a set of regulations, which have been tied up three years in the courts, is freed.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband sells encyclopedias direct to the consumer. He makes very good money, is a fine father and husband and we've never had any trouble that couldn't be talked out in one evening.

Because of the nature of my husband's work he often has to make evening calls. I never thought a thing about it until a friend of mine asked if I had any proof that he was going where he said he was. Did he ever leave a number where he could be reached? Did he ever come home too late or too tired to be much of a husband? I admit she raised some doubts in my mind.

I've been examining his clothes for lipstick and can't find a trace. There are no bobby pins or red-tipped cigarette butts in the car ashtrays. In other words, not a shred of evidence. What does this sound like to you?—BIG QUESTION.

Dear Big: It sounds like your friend's mouth would make the Grand Canyon look like a buttonhole.

A man who does direct selling should not be phoned at the home of a prospective customer.

And as for that last question, Toots, did your husband ever come home and find you too tired to be much of a wife? Does that mean you were cheating on him in the afternoon? Use your head, Girl. Your friend is no friend.

Date Dictum

Dear Ann: I'm a high school junior, 17 years of age, and want you to answer a simple question in the newspaper so my folks can see it with their own eyes.

Why shouldn't a 17-year-old girl who makes good grades, is on the school paper, is a cheerleader and holds a class office be allowed to date during the week?

I started to date when I was a freshman and I've always behaved like a lady. At present my Numero Uno is a college freshman. We are not going steady but I'm afraid he might fall hard for someone else if I can only see him three times a week. — need your help. — NEVER ON WEEKDAYS.

Dear Never: A 17-year-old girl should be at home evenings during the week. The reason you've done well in school is because your parents have been bright enough to keep you under control.

High school homework is poured on mighty heavy these days and kids who date during the week can't possibly do justice to their assignments. Three dates a week is a great plenty for Numero Uno. It's always best to keep a boy friend wanting just a little more of your company.

Left Hand Grip

Dear Ann: You were wrong when you told "Miss Inquisitive" that a left-handed handshake has no special meaning. I will quote from the manual "Tenderfoot to Queen Scout":

"When a famous Ashanti Chief surrendered to Lord Baden-Powell the latter extended his right hand as a token of friendship. The chief insisted on shaking with the left hand, explaining that the bravest of the brave shake hands with the left hand, since, in order to do so, he must throw away his greatest protection — the shield." Scouts shake hands with the left hand as proof of their good faith and true friendship.—CALGARY, ALBERTA.

Dear Cal: Your reference to the Queen Scout suggested that the southpaw approach was strictly a custom of our Canadian neighbors. After checking with my Silver Beaver friends in Chicago I learned that the left-handed handshake among Scouts is universal. Thank you for cluing us in on the interesting background.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Health Officials Hoping New Plan Curbs Venereal Disease

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Health officials are hoping that a regulation effective April 1 will be a new weapon against an old foe—venereal disease.

Agreed upon four weeks ago by Ohio's Public Health Council, it requires laboratories to report positive findings in tests for syphilis, gonorrhea and other venereal diseases to officials of the patient's health district.

Getting adequate and prompt reports of V.D. has been a continuing problem for public health officials. They are anxious to investigate quickly in the hope of heading off outbreaks.

Data being compiled show that new cases of syphilis and gonorrhea continued to increase in Ohio during the past year. Particularly disturbing, officials say is the increase in new cases among those younger than 20.

A decade ago, less than one syphilis case in 10 in Ohio involved a teen-ager. The ratio was only fractionally greater for gonorrhea.

Now, about one new case in every five of either disease involves someone from the younger-than-20 group.

In 1959, the number of reported syphilis cases in Ohio reached its lowest point since World War II—91. But totals have been climbing ever since, and 433 new cases were reported in the past year.

The low point in post - war years in Ohio for gonorrhea, which is more prevalent, was 6,850 reported new cases in 1957. Totals there also have risen steadily since.

Gonorrhea figures for 1963 are not complete, but 9,255 reports were received during the first nine months. State health officials say the total is bound to exceed the 1962 total of 10,300 reported cases.

"People used to think of syphilis as a disease of lower economic classes and nonwhites," says Dr. Harold A. Decker, chief of the State Health Department's Communicable Diseases Division.

"While not completely true, that has been true to a large extent. More and more, though, it's appearing among middle and upper economic class people—business people, professional people.

"And it used to be almost exclusively a disease that occurred in large cities. It still does, but it's appearing more and more in small communities and rural areas. This is the mobility of the times."

ICC Chairman Terms Rail Industry Healthy And Sound

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission took a long look at the nation's railroad industry today and declared the patient healthy and sound.

"They'll never be obsolete—no, sir," declared Abe McGregor Goff, 64, Idaho Republican who assumed the chair of the 11-man commission Jan. 1.

"The railroads have had a tremendous increase in long-haul traffic," Goff said in an interview. "I won't make any specific predictions about the future, but all of our railroads are in much healthier shape than they were last year at this time."

Why, then, if the industry is so healthy, have so many mergers been consummated or proposed?

"Why, that's simple," Goff said. "Seventy-five years ago, when all the railroads were laid out, they didn't lay them out in a pattern designed for modern conditions. They had no way of knowing what this country would look like today. So now there have to be some adjustments made."

Goff had a ready answer when asked whether he has a philosophy about railroad mergers.

"Of course I do," he said. "If they're in the public interest, I favor them. If they're bad, I'm against them."

Grim War Of Nerves

Cunning Adversaries

By STEVE ERICKSON

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—My postman, milkman and garbage man are waging a grim war of nerves with me. Thay are cunning adversaries.

The garbage man dislikes getting up early, and he hates garbage. In his profession, however, he is required to rise with the rooster.

Sometimes after he rattles empty cans for a while a light flicks on inside a house and an eyeball stares out.

I peeped through our blinds one morning, and he seemed happy at an audience. He performs once a week.

A little later — too late for breakfast—the milkman shows up. His mind is not on milk and cottage cheese. He is a wrong item-leaver. And quick on the getaway.

Our milkman leaves the richest blend of creamy milk instead of the skim milk we order. This makes my wife unhappy. It makes her husband fat. It makes our milkman chuckle as he drives away.

The ZIP code confuses our postman. He delivers our mail to the neighbors. I don't suppose they like getting our bills any more than we appreciate theirs.

My wife explains that he is trying to get the neighbors acquainted with each other. She calls him an unforgettable character.

"He's trying to bring warmth into our lives," she says.

I've tried everything. One night I taped a note to the garbage can lid requesting more gentle handling. A monumental din awoke me the following morning. Either our garbage man does not read, or he does not heed.

I was waiting when our milkman arrived. My wife had persuaded me to a diplomatic approach.

These overtures turned into a partisan analysis of the Rose Bowl football game. When our milkman left, our skim milk left with him. Two quarts of eggnog and some large curd cottage cheese remained on our porch.

I went afield in search of our postman. I spotted a letter carrier two blocks away, sweet-talking a neighbor's dog which had given me some hard times.

When I approached, the dog snorted and quit bothering the postman who grinned gratefully.

I skirted diplomatic preambles and told him we had been getting everyone's mail but our own. I told him the neighbors were getting our mail. He offered his sympathies.

"What is your address?" I told him.

"That's not on my route," he said. "Old Limpy delivers your mail."

"To the neighbors," I said.

When I got back home Old Limpy already had been there and left two envelopes. They were addressed to us.

One was a garbage bill. The other was a milk bill.

I went to the kitchen and mixed a stiff drink—of eggnog.

Senator Calls Missiles Undependable

Goldwater Refuses Reply To McNamara On ICBMs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Air Force officers have more confidence in the piloted bomber than they do in missiles.

But probably few would go as far as Sen. Barry Goldwater and challenge the dependability of this country's growing and improving force of Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles.

Goldwater, campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination in New Hampshire Thursday, called the ICBMs undependable and drew a blast from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The Arizona senator returned here Thursday night and refused to reply to McNamara's strong charge that Goldwater's statement was completely misleading, politically irresponsible and damaging to national security.

The United States now has a total of more than 550 ICBMs in firing position.

These include 234 liquid-fuel Atlas and Titan rockets and 320 solid-fuel Minutemen, advanced weapons which will make up the great bulk of this country's eventual arsenal of about 1,200 long range, land-based "birds."

The earliest model Atlases were of doubtful reliability. They took hours to load with fuel. They had lots of complex "plumbing" that was susceptible to breakdown, and the fuel could not be left in the missile tanks because it was highly corrosive.

As the U.S. missile builders learned, the weapons were improved.

The engineers developed a liquid fuel that could be stored indefinitely in the tanks of advanced Titans. These missiles can be launched within a minute, the Air Force claims.

The Minutemen are considered even more reliable, with their simplified solid fuel, and they are said to be able to fire in about half a minute.

The missile engineers have been working constantly to improve the range, accuracy and reliability of the big weapons.

Promotion Received By Former Resident

A former East Liverpool resident has received a promotion with the Albuquerque (N.M.) Publishing Co., with which he has been associated since 1944.

He is Malcolm A. Bolles, who has been named advertising director for the company. He also will continue to serve as retail advertising manager.

Loss Of $61 Reported In Gas Station Entry

Jack Miller of Miller's Gulf Service at St. Clair Ave. and Cain St. reported to police Thursday that over $61 was stolen in a burglary Wednesday night or early yesterday.

Miller said $56 in currency and $5.66 in change was taken after the burglar broke a window on the south side to gain entrance. He left by a rear door, police were told.

76 In County On Probation

LISBON — Richard V. Rose, Columbiana County adult probation officer, said today that a total of 76 persons are currently on probation, 12 less than last year.

A breakdown of his annual report with 1962 in parenthesis:

A total of 48 (59) persons on probation reside in the county, 16 (19) elsewhere in Ohio and five (5) outside the state, all supervised by his department.

In addition, there are seven (three) cases supervised by other probation departments, three (two) by his department for other probation departments, none supervised by him for County Juvenile Court but last year he had one.

Eleven (10) cases were terminated and rights restored to the defendants; twelve (12) were cited for probation violations and 10 (three) were sentenced.

He completed 30 (35) investigations, has eight (five) currently being investigated, has nine (nine) pending for hearing, and 12 (24) were granted probation during the year with two cases terminated because the subjects died.

In 54 (51) probation cases, the court costs have been paid in full. Rose collected $2,920.89 ($2,612.89) during the year with $1,791.80 ($1,783.74) collected in restitution with a balance of $2,650.45 ($4,515.46), still owed from active cases.

A total of 176 divorce cases were assigned by his department for investigation, compared to 185 last year.

Experts Seeking Source Of Fumes

CINCINNATI (AP) — Experts still were attempting Thursday night to find the source of fumes that had the eastern section of the city on edge for a short while Thursday afternoon in fear of an explosion.

The fumes, smelling similar to natural gas, lingered for about 1½ hours and residents swamped the fire department, City Air Pollution Department and the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. with telephone calls.

Gamble Junior High School pupils were dismissed a half hour early when the fumes filled the building, and surgical recovery patients at Bethesda Hospital were removed to another room when the fumes crept into the hospital.

No injuries were reported. Officials said there was no danger of an explosion and no gas leaks had been reported. They theorized the fumes originated from a chemical escaping into the air from an industrial plant.

Chester Lion Draft Fund-Raising Plans

Fund - raising projects were discussed at a meeting of the Chester Lions Club Thursday night at the City Park community building.

John Abrams reported 18 baskets of food were distributed to nine needy families during the holidays.

Jerry D'Angelo reported $88 was netted from the sale of Christmas trees. Michael Vitellas of Chester was a guest. Twenty attended.

The board of directors will meet Thursday night at 7:30 with Sayre Graham of George Ave. The club will meet Jan. 23.

Clayton Hobbs Jr., first vice president, presided.

Johnson Eyes Parley At Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

—:—

DISARMAMENT: President Johnson views the next round of disarmament negotiations in Geneva as "one of the most important way stations in this nation's priority efforts to strengthen the peace."

"As the United States enters these negotiations in a new year we harbor no illusions of easy success," the President was quoted as saying in a White House statement issued today.

"But we do take encouragement from developments in the recent past and look to new opportunities in this nation's search for new agreement in sound and significant arms limitation and reduction measures."

The White House also confirmed that William C. Foster, director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, will head the U.S. delegation. The talks are to begin Jan. 21, with 17 nations taking part.

REFURBISHED: Freshly painted and stocked with historic furniture, Blair House is ready for the arrival Tuesday of President Antonio Segni of Italy.

The newly decorated President's guest house, across the street from the White House, was reopened Thursday with a reception. "I think it's beautiful," said Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson after a tour.

About $150,000 in gifts helped in the refurbishing job. In charge of the project was a committee headed by Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke, wife of the chief of protocol.

NO COMMENT: Atomic Energy Commissioner Robert E. Wilson's reply to reports that he has submitted his resignation to President Johnson is "I just don't feel free to say what the present situation is."

A former board chairman of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Wilson favors private ownership of special nuclear materials, now a government monopoly. His argument is that the present system is costly to taxpayers and hampers development of a private atomic energy system.

Postal Receipts Reach $313,718

For the first time in the history of the local Post Office, yearly receipts surpassed the $300,000 mark, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown said today.

Recepits from the sale of stamped paper, stamps, printed envelopes and meter postage totaled $313,718 in 1963, a boost of $51,338 over the 1962 total of $262,442, Brown said.

—:—

INCREASES were recorded in all four quarters, the postmaster said. The breakd o w n and comparison by quarters showed:

First, $60,894 in 1962, $73,977 in 1963; second, $56,417 and $64,633; third, $68,678 and $85,243, and fourth, $76,451 and $89,927.

Brown commented that 25 years ago — in 1938 — receipts were only $107,106 and the main post office building then was antiquated.

It had been earmarked five years previously for replacement by a new building but Congress, after approving the office, never got around to actually appropriating funds for its construction, he recalled.

"Now with our receipts almost triple those of 1938, the business still is being run from the building constructed in 1908," the postmaster declared.

—:—

HE ALSO pointed to the new post offices in Wellsville, Negley, Salem and North Georgetown and a new office under construction in Salineville. All were built in Columbiana County within the last two years.

Recent surveys and inspections made by the dpeartment show "a desperate need" for a modern building, with parking space to accommodate customers.

"Our 1908 lighting, plumbing and some equipment facilities cannot carry on to infinity," Brown declared.

The postmaster also pointed out the main office wrote 34,998 money orders totaling $676,816 in 1963. The fees came to $8,862.

Although it requires a considerable amount of time and manpower to handle the number of transactions, the department has ruled the money cannot be included in receipts.

IN AN EARLIER report, Brown pointed out the volume of mail last year exceeded 1962.

Although the Zip Code still is in its infancy, it has been beneficial to large concerns, he noted.

Brown also praised local employes for their dedication to the overworked slogan that "the mail must go through," explaining they are handicapped by a lack of space and equipment.

As anticipated with the opening of the new Station A postal branch on Pennsylvania Ave. in August, its receipts showed an increase of $6,079 over 1962, Postmaster Brown said in releasing the report of Theodore W. Burke, station superintendent.

BURKE'S report showed receipts of $23,891 last year compared to $17,811 in 1962. The receipts include only w i n d o w sales of stamps and printed envelopes, metered postage a n d box rents.

The office also wrote $216,000 worth of money orders last year, but neither the amounts nor the fees charged are included in the receipts, Burke explained.

Brown said the opening of the facility was paramount in the increase of the receipts, explaining motorist traveling on Pennsylvania Ave. now can pull into the station area to park and can also avoid standing in line at the main office.

At present, only B u r k e and J. Ernest Purton, clerk, are on duty, but Brown said he hopes two or three foot carriers will operate out of the station if shuttle runs can be arranged and other arrangements completed.

The nutritive values of margarine and butter are so nearly alike that the difference is insignificant.

Wellsville Man Given Plaque In Scholarship Plan

Jon Lee Kiggans of Wellsville, a senior in chemical engineering at Youngstown University, was presented a plaque Thursday by Koppers Co., Inc., in honor of the $650 scholarship awarded to him recently by the Koppers Foundation.

The plaque was presented on behalf of Koppers by Morgan D. James, manager of the company's Youngstown plant. In addition to the $650 awarded Kiggans, an equal amount has been presented to the university by the Koppers Foundation.

As specified by the foundation, the scholarship was to be given to a chemical engineering student in his junior or senior year at the university. The selection, as made by university officials, was based on academic performance and financial need.

Kiggans is on the dean's list and ranks in the top 10 per cent of the students attending the university. He is married and has two children. He and his family reside at 1604 Chester Ave., Wellsville.

Kiggans was an employe of Koppers from 1957 to 1962, during which time he attended college on a part-time basis. Early last year, however, he resigned from the company to devote his full-time to completing his education this spring.

Wellsville Burglar Gets $300 In Market

Wellsville police are continuing an investigation into a breaking and entering at Mason's Foodliner on Wells Ave. Thursday in which an intruder escaped with $300 in cash from the office in the market.

The thief broke a window to gain entrance in the rear of the store, and smashed a thick plate glass window in the front to get out. Police were summoned at 3:20 a. m. by a bakery employe who was at work in another part of the building. The patrolman arrived within three minutes but the thief had fled.

Council Fills Positions For Midland Units

Midland Council T h u r sday night filled posts on various municipal units, reappointing incumbents including Rudolph Presutti as chief clerk of the Income Tax Bureau, who was named to receive the wage taxes for the calendar year.

Sullivan Tonti received an another five - year term on the Municipal Authority; Nicholas Deramo, for a three - year term on the Zoning Board of Appeals; James Reed for a six - year term to the Police Civil Service Commission, and L l o y d Murphy for a five - year term on the Planning Commission.

In other action, Councilman Joseph D'Alesio asked if Council could have the street department ash Route 68 to the vicinity of the Kenny Miller Service Station as a courtesy to East Liverpool area residents driving to work each day at the Crucible Steel Co.

He said East Liverpool road crews go as far as the station with cindering, and he feels Midland should take care of the eastern section, if the Pennsylvania highway crews do n o t look after it in bad weather.

Councilman Ray Presutti had asked this at an earlier meeting, requesting the borough solicitor's office for a ruling as to the legality of going outside the borough limits to tend to the road. He said he had not received any word. The question was again referred to the solicitor, Atty. Frank Suffoletta, for a ruling for the next meeting of Council.

Council also directed the secretary, Mrs. C. K. O'Hara, at the request of D'Alesio, to write the state highway director, to ask if something could be done to remedy the deteriorating condition of the road.

Mrs. O'Hara was also directed to contact the Municipal Authority to ask removal of a barrier placed at steps in the vicinity of 7th St., which are used by millworkers.

The barrier apparently w a s placed at the steps as a safety measure due to construction in the area.

Councilman Presutti said he had received a letter from a steelworker about some of the traffic problems prevailing in Midland and possible solutions. The letter was turned over to the Police Chief Ed Stefl and Mayor Eli Corak for study.

In other action, Council received a petition from a citizens' committee, requesting that the "Green Belt," a plot of land owned by the borough, be made available for sale for construction of home sites.

Mayor Corak explained that the land, situated in the vicinity of Virginia Ave., was given to the borough by Crucible Steel, could not be sold to individuals because the agreement stipulates that it be used for a community recreation area.

He said that the letter would be forwarded to Crucible officials with Council's tentative approval for sale to individuals and the steel concern could decide if the provision might be waved. He pointed out, however, that if it were waived, the borough would have to advertise the land and sell to the best bidders.

A letter was also received from Patsy Borriello, who said he plans to reopen the Liberty Theater shortly and asked that action be taken to ban parking in front.

On motion of Councilman Presutti, Council agreed to erect signs banning parking while the theater is open.

Officers' reports were accepted and bills were ordered paid. W i l l i a m Vinovich, president, presided. Next meeting is Jan. 23.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT HEARING

Q. Are all deaf persons helped by hearing aids?

A. No. It depends on what part of the hearing apparatus is affected. The hearing mechanism is like a telephone and receiver. The inner ear is the telephone. It is connected with a receiver (the brain) by wires (auditory or hearing nerve). When something happens in the inner ear that makes it less efficient, only loud noises get through to the nerve for relay to the brain. Hearing aids simply increase sound volume to make the sound audible to the partially deaf person. If something happens to the hearing nerve, increasing the loudness of the sound does no good. The first step when hearing begins to fade is to consult your doctor. He can determine whether medicine, surgery or a hearing aid will help.

Q. Why do deaf people hear better in noisy surroundings than in quiet rooms?

A. They don't, although they may believe that outside noise "sharpens" their hearing. Using special equipment, Mayo Clinic doctors found that outside noise bothers partially deaf persons just as much as it does people with normal hearing. Actually, any individual person is a poor judge of how well he can hear.

Record High Mark

Postal Receipts Reach $313,718

For the first time in the history of the local Post Office, yearly receipts surpassed the $300,000 mark, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown said today.

Recepits from the sale of stamped paper, stamps, printed envelopes and meter postage totaled $313,718 in 1963, a boost of $51,338 over the 1962 total of $262,442, Brown said.

INCREASES were recorded in all four quarters, the postmaster said. The breakdown and comparison by quarters showed:

First, $60,894 in 1962, $73,977 in 1963; second, $56,417 and $64,633; third, $68,678 and $85,243, and fourth, $76,451 and $89,927.

Brown commented that 25 years ago — in 1938 — receipts were only $107,106 and the main post office building then was antiquated.

It had been earmarked five years previously for replacement by a new building but Congress, after approving the office, never got around to actually appropriating funds for its construction, he recalled.

"Now with our receipts almost triple those of 1938, the business still is being run from the building constructed in 1908," the postmaster declared.

HE ALSO pointed to the new post offices in Wellsville, Negley, Salem and North Georgetown and a new office under construction in Salineville. All were built in Columbiana County within the last two years.

Recent surveys and inspections made by the dpeartment show "a desperate need" for a modern building, with parking space to accommodate customers.

"Our 1908 lighting, plumbing and some equipment facilities cannot carry on to infinity," Brown declared.

The postmaster also pointed out the main office wrote 34,998 money orders totaling $676,816 in 1963. The fees came to $8,862.

Although it requires a considerable amount of time and manpower to handle the number of transactions, the department has ruled the money cannot be included in receipts.

IN AN EARLIER report, Brown pointed out the volume of mail last year exceeded 1962.

Although the Zip Code still is in its infancy, it has been beneficial to large concerns, he noted.

Brown also praised local employes for their dedication to the overworked slogan that "the mail must go through," explaining they are handicapped by a lack of space and equipment.

Blazer Keeps Pins Hot . . .

Ed Blazer, who started to learn the pin game later in life than most people, has been burning up the local lanes this season.

Ed, who is 43, says he only started bowling five years ago, but from some of his averages and scores the last few months it would appear he has been bowling all his life.

He is currently bowling in four leagues. He has 202 and 201 averages in two leagues. In another, his average is 199 and in one other he is carrying a 190. These are all based on 50 games or more.

If this isn't consistency, then we don't know what is.

Local bowlers first took notice of Ed two years ago when he rolled a 723 series, the highest to be bowled in the city until Butch Wucherer topped it wth a 725 Monday night.

Ed hit another 700 series this season, totaling 709. Some of his other high scores have been 691, 686, 685 and 675.

It was pointed out that last month Ed rolled seven games, three in the American League and four more in the Holiday Tournament the same night.

Blazer Mason Cunningham Spires

Out of the seven games, four were over the 250 mark. How about that? He totaled 897 scratch in the tourney games.

Fellow bowlers have a lot of respect for Ed's ability. As one put it, "it is too bad someone doesn't gve Ed some backing and put him on the bowling tour. He's as good as some of those bowlers on television."

Who Is Next At Massillon . . .

NOW that Kent State has hired Leo Strang as its new head football coach, the question is who will be the new grid boss at Massillon.

The first name to pop up would be that of Tony Mason, who guided Niles to its second Ohio grid title in three years this past season.

We talked with Mason Thursday. The Niles coach had just returned from New York where he spoke at the annual convention of the American Football Coaches Association.

Strang was at the meeting and told Mason earlier this week that he had the Kent job sewed up.

Asked yesterday if he would be interested in the Massillon job, Mason replied: "I'm always looking and I will be willing to listen to any offers. And if they want me they'll contact me."

The money doesn't seem to be the factor in Mason's case because he admits he does "pretty well" at Niles. More than the money, Massillon has always been a big stepping stone for coaches. For instance, Paul Brown started at Massillon, Tom Harp, now at Colgate, and Chuck Mather went from Massillon to Kansas U. to the Chicago Bears.

"I'm happy for Leo, I think it was a good move by Kent and I am glad that a high school coach got the job," Mason said.

Other names that might come up for the Massillon post could be Earl Bruce, who has been so successful at Sandusky, and Bob Wion of Martins Ferry, who made quite an impression on the Canton area when he coached the South All-Star team two years ago.

Cunningham Sees Action . . .

KEN CUNNINGHAM finally saw some action for Cincinnati U. the other night in the loss at Oregon State.

The ex-Potter star played 10 minutes and hit on three of four shots.

Cunningham, ushered to the bench when two taller sophomores won the guard jobs, may be seeing more action in the future.

One of the sophomores who took Cunningham's spot is having trouble with grades. Roland West remains a question mark on whether he can stay on the team.

Cincinnati gets into the meat of its Missouri Valley schedule in the next three weeks and meets St. Louis Saturday night in the Queen City.

Spires Will Return To OU . . .

DON SPIRES, the All-Ohio center from Stanton Local, plans to return to Ohio University the first of next month.

Don was one of the top scorers on the Ohio U. freshman team last season, but dropped out of school for a semester. He won't play any basketball for the Bobcats this season, but will have three years of scholastic eligibilty left when he goes out for the squad next year.

Ernie Banks Pronounced Physically Fit For '64

CHICAGO (AP)—Ernie Banks has been pronounced 100 per cent physically fit for the 1964 baseball campaign, a cheery note for the Chicago Cubs.

So important was Banks' fitness progress that the report was read by Dr. Jacob Suker, club physician, to Cub stockholders Thursday.

"Ernie is 100 per cent fit," said Suker. "There is no reason, physically, that should prevent him from playing every game in 1964. His eyes have also checked out okay. All we can say is that he is physically fit to play. But we can't hit for him."

Last year an ailing Banks slumped to a .227 batting average, his lowest. He hit only 18 homers compared to his high of 47 in 1958, and drove in 64 runs compared to a high of 143 in 1959.

The great slugging star was converted from shortstop to first base in 1962. He hit .269 then, drove in 104 runs and got 37 homers.

Banks, who will be 33 on Jan. 31, was in Nassau and unable to make the meeting.

Midland Can Dim Hopewell's Sec. 8 Hopes; Oak Glen Faces Tigers

A flurry of basketball games falls on the district this weekend with 13 on tonight's card and seven more Saturday.

Three major contests tonight find Midland visiting Hopewell, a team which is in second place in the Section 8 standings, East Liverpool facing powerful Steubenville Big Red and Oak Glen traveling to Wellsville to seek revenge for an earlir loss.

A victory by Midland tonight would almost knock Hopewell out of the Section 8 running. Hopewell lost Tuesday night for the first time in league play leaving Midland by itself in first place.

Coach Hank Kuzma's team also goes after its 12th straight victory of the season tonight.

East Liverpool isn't given much of a chance to get by the superior forces of Steubenville Big Red. That game is set for the Big Red gym with reserve teams meeting at 6:30.

The Potters take a 3-5 record to Steubenville while Big Red has won five of six games.

Oak Glen will be out to even the score tonight at Wellsville after suffering a narrow defeat at Chester last month. In that game, the Golden Bears led most of the way but were nipped at the end from the foul line.

Coach Bob Starkey's team has won their last two games.

The district's only other undefeated team, Lisbon, tangles in a big game at Columbiana tonight. The outcome of this one could go a long way in deciding the Tri - County title this season.

Other Tri - County games find East Palestine at Poland and Minerva at Leetonia.

Tom Coulter, an All-Ohio candidate, and his Toronto teammates invade Beaver Local tonight. The Beavers are still looking for their first victory of the season after six straight setbacks.

Stanton Local, which found the range against Wayne for its best showing of the season last Tuesday night, entertains Smithfield tonight.

United has a date at Jackson - Milton tonight, Warren visits Salem for a Big 8 battle and Crestview will attempt to get back on the winning trail at Southern Local.

In other Pennsylvania action South Side travels to Chartiers - Houston and Western Beaver faces Beaver.

Seven games Saturday will wrap up the week's cage activity.

UCLA and Texas Western are the biggest surprises of the college basketball season, now in its midseason calm, while Arizone State and New York University are the biggest disappointments.

The Uclans and Texas Western were rated high in preseason forecasts, but no one expected that they would be so prominent by this date. UCLA, sparked by Walt Hazzard, encounters a strong Big Six rival tonight in Southern California. To date the Uclans have whipped Brigham Young, Butler, Kansas State, Kansas, Baylor, Creighton, Yale, Michigan, Illinois and Washington State twice.

Big 6-foot-8 Jim Barnes is Texas Western's star. The Border Bandits beat North Texas in their opening game, then lost to Washington 57-49. Since then they have defeated Wichita, Tarleton, Long Beach, San Jose, Centenary, Tennessee Tech twice, Tulane, William and Mary, Clemson, Denver, Western New Mexico, Arizona State and West Texas. Late Mixup In Army-Navy Game Picked Top Oddity

By The Associated Press

For more than three quarters, Navy's football team, flaunting Drive for Five on its jerseys to emphasize its desire for a fifth straight victory over Army, dominated the climactic game of the 1963 college football season.

Roger Staubach, Pat Donnelly & Co. looked virtually unbeatable as they carried a 21-7 lead into the final period. Then Army, with Rollie Stichweh at the helm, began a comeback drive that put the Cadets within reach of victory before it faded out in confusion as the final seconds ticked off.

This exciting and frustrating finish of a game seen by more than 100,000 spectators in Philadelphia Stadium and by countless television watchers, was picked today as the oddity of the year by sports writers and broadcasters participating in The Associated Press year-end poll.

With football still fresh in their minds, the voters put the Army-Navy game ending just ahead of the outcome of the 1963 World Series on their list. Twenty of 71 listed the football mixup first; 17 showed the most amazement that the unbeatable New York Yankees could lose four straight World Series games to the Los Angeles Dodgers—or that Los Angeles could win four in a row.

Various other oddities drew only passing mention. These ranged from the National League's determined but eventually futile efforts to enforce the balk rule to the letter to poetry-spouting Cassius Clay's challenges to heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

Jack Dempsey Now Accused Of Wearing Loaded Gloves

NEW YORK (AP) — Another ghost from the past has risen to haunt Jack Dempsey. Now they are claiming he used loaded gloves in 1919 when he won the world heavyweight boxing title from Jess Willard.

The story is revealed in the memoirs of the late Jack (Doc) Kearns, his manager at the time, as published in a copyrighted feature in Sports Illustrated. Dempsey denied it in the same article.

Kearns claimed he used plaster of paris and water in bandaging Dempsey's hands to insure a 10-1 bet of $10,000 that Dempsey would win it in one round. Kearns lost, for due to a comedy of errors Dempsey won in three rounds.

Dempsey's ex-manager said the fighter was "entirely innocent of what happened."

The article quoted Dempsey as commenting, "Ridiculous! I could take an oath. In fact I will. I hope to God I die right now, and my wife and children, too, if there is any truth in what Kearns said."

Dempsey was out of town and couldn't be reached immediately for further comment.

A month ago Benny Marshall of the Birmingham News wrote that Dempsey had been doped before his first fight with Gene Tunney in Philadelphia. At the time, Dempsey said he was not sick the day of the fight but added, "a doctor told me the next day, I'd probably been given a Mickey Finn and I probably was ill for three or four days after that."

In reference to the 1919 bout, Willard, now 82, told Sports Illustrated:

"I'm glad that Kearns finally was man enough to admit it. First time Dempsey hit me, I knew the gloves were loaded. He knocked me down seven times, maybe eight. I don't recall exactly now. But every time he hit me, I could feel another bone or two breaking. I got robbed by the king of the robbers, I guess we could say. That Kearns. As long as I got robbed, I'm glad I got robbed by the best man in the country at stealing ... Nobody ever knocked me out. But I was blind. I was dazed from getting clobbered by those chunks of cement. My face was all broken, and my head was, too."

High Court Gets Plea On Insurance License

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court received an appeal Thursday from the Ohio Department of Insurance in the case of James A. Matash of Warren, whose casualty insurance license it revoked a year ago. Lower courts ordered Matash's license restored, but the Insurance Department says revocation should stand.

Matash's license was taken away upon his conviction of attempting to influence a grand jury witness. The courts overturned the revocation on grounds the department failed to file a certified copy of its proceedings with the trial court within 30 days after Matash appealed to that court.

New Football Coach Named At Boston U.

NEW YORK (AP)—An unusual trend of picking assistants, rather than experienced coaches for vacant head football coaching jobs has been the rule rather than the exception since the 1963 college season ended.

Nine top positions have been filled since the end of last season and seven have gone to assistants, two of these from pro teams.

Ara Parseghian and Marv Levy have been the exceptions. Parseghian, former head coach at Northwestern, shifted to the top spot at Notre Dame. Levy went from head coach at the University of California to the helm at William and Mary.

The elevation of Warren Schmakel, a Rutgers assistant, to head coach at Boston University Wednesday, points up this unusual trend in the postseason game of musical chairs.

During a job-hunting session at the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention just completed, one prominent coach said "It's really tough these days for an unemployed head coach to get located.

"It seems that most schools are afraid to take on a man who didn't fit at his last assignment. Also, few head coaches want to hire another former head coach as an assistant. He's afraid he might get his job."

There have been head coaching changes at 14 colleges since the end of last football season with five schools still looking for replacements. They are Washington State, Wake Forest, Ohio Wesleyan and Southern Illinois.

36 College Cagers Get Shot At Olympic Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Thirty-six college players will get a shot at the 12-man Olympic basketball team the United States sends to Tokyo next October.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association Council, in one of its last items of convention business Thursday, approved a complicated plan for college representation in the Olympic basketball trials at St. John's University here April 2-4.

The colleges will send three 12-man teams to the tournament, including one having as its nucleus six players from the national collegiate champion team to be decided at Kansas City March 20-21.

Other action by the NCAA council, at its final meeting, included:

1. A formal statement disassociating the NCAA with strong remarks made by Charles Werner, director of the U.S. Track and Field Federation, against the Amateur Athletic Union and the role of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in arbitration efforts between the warring groups last year. The council said Werner's statements "do not represent the consistent position taken by the NCAA through the history of the negotiations."

2. Frank Carver, athletic director at Pittsburgh, was named to the executive committee succeeding Richard C. Larkins, athletic director at Ohio State, who was appointed a ninth NCAA member of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

3. Appointment of six NCAA representatives to the U.S. Track and Field Federation, three to the U.S. Gymnastics Federation and three to the U.S. Basketball Federation. The three groups have been fighting with the AAU for control of their sports.

'Burg Leads At San Diego Or Does He?

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Golfer Bob Rosburg led the way into the second round of the $30,000 San Diego Open Friday —or did he?

But—30 golfers, stranded by darkness on the Rancho Bernardo Country Club course Thursday were set to complete their initial round early today. Included were at least three threats who could match or even outscore Rosburg. They are Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, Frank Beard, Louisville, Ky., each with nine hole scores of 33, and Dow Finsterwald, Colorado Springs, with a 34.

This trio, plus the others, faced the problem of a further delay since the weather has a habit at this time of the year of freezing the greens in the early morning hours.

They froze Thursday morning, causing an hour delay in the start, and the same was expected today, which could cause even more confusion.

There was no problem later in the day. The skies were bright, the temperature warm.

The Rancho Bernardo course, under fire for the first time in San Diego annals, apparently is none too easy. Only 20 players bettered par. A year ago, at another course and in cold, wet weather, 47 broke par.

Two shots under par were Tommy Bolt, George Knudson of Canada and Peter Butler, England's Professional Golfers Association champion who is making his American debut.

Arnold Palmer, who is a pretournament selection in almost any event he enters, hoped to rebound from an opening 73.

The leaders (x—amateur):

Bob Rosburg	33-33—66
Julius Boros	33-34—67
Tony Lema	33-34—67

SECTION 3. That for the purpose of raising money in anticipation of the levy and collection of special assessments and of the issuance of the aforesaid bonds for the above described improvement, it is hereby declared necessary to issue and there shall be issued notes of said City in the principal amount of $348,393.00.

SECTION 4. That such anticipatory notes in the amount aforesaid shall bear interest at such rate not exceeding three per centum (3%) per annum, payable at maturity; shall be dated the date of issuance; shall mature on or before one year from said date of issuance; and shall be executed and delivered in such numbers and denominations as may be requested by the purchaser thereof.

SECTION 5. Such notes shall be executed by the Mayor and Auditor and bear the seal of the corporation. They shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, and shall express upon their faces the purpose for which they are issued and that they are issued pursuant to this ordinance.

SECTION 6. All assessments collected for the improvement aforesaid, and any unexpended balance remaining in the improvement fund after the costs and expenses of said improvements have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and the interest thereon until both are fully provided for.

SECTION 7. Subject to the rejection of said notes by the Treasurer as officer in charge of the Bond Retirement Fund, said notes are hereby awarded and sold to The First National Bank of East Liverpool in the amount of $173,393.00, and to the Potters Bank and Trust Co. of East Liverpool in the amount of $175,000.00, at par value thereof, in accordance with their written purchase proposals dated December 20, 1963. The par value to be received from the sale of the bonds anticipated by said notes and any excess funds resulting from the issuance of said notes shall to the extent necessary be used only for the retirement of said notes at maturity, together with interest thereon, and is hereby pledged for such purpose.

SECTION 9. In the event that such assessments are not levied or bonds are not issued to provide a fund for the payment of said notes at maturity, a general tax shall be levied against all of the property in said City for the payment of such notes and the interest thereon; provided, however, that during the year or years while such notes run there shall be levied on all the taxable property in said City, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually not less than that which would have been levied for the City's portion of said notes, if bonds had been issued therefor without the prior issue of said notes.

Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal and interest of said notes or the bonds in anticipation of which it is issued when and as the same falls due.

Late Mixup In Army-Navy Game Picked Top Oddity

By The Associated Press

For more than three quarters, Navy's football team, flaunting Drive for Five on its jerseys to emphasize its desire for a fifth straight victory over Army, dominated the climactic game of the 1963 college football season.

Roger Staubach, Pat Donnelly & Co. looked virtually unbeatable as they carried a 21-7 lead into the final period. Then Army, with Rollie Stichweh at the helm, began a comeback drive that put the Cadets within reach of victory before it faded out in confusion as the final seconds ticked off.

This exciting and frustrating finish of a game seen by more than 100,000 spectators in Philadelphia Stadium and by countless television watchers, was picked today as the oddity of the year by sports writers and broadcasters participating in The Associated Press year-end poll.

With football still fresh in their minds, the voters put the Army-Navy game ending just ahead of the outcome of the 1963 World Series on their list. Twenty of 71 listed the football mixup first; 17 showed the most amazement that the unbeatable New York Yankees could lose four straight World Series games to the Los Angeles Dodgers—or that Los Angeles could win four in a row.

Various other oddities drew only passing mention. These ranged from the National League's determined but eventually futile efforts to enforce the balk rule to the letter to poetry-spouting Cassius Clay's challenges to heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

Jack Dempsey Now Accused Of Wearing Loaded Gloves

NEW YORK (AP) — Another ghost from the past has risen to haunt Jack Dempsey. Now they are claiming he used loaded gloves in 1919 when he won the world heavyweight boxing title from Jess Willard.

The story is revealed in the memoirs of the late Jack (Doc) Kearns, his manager at the time, as published in a copyrighted feature in Sports Illustrated. Dempsey denied it in the same article.

Kearns claimed he used plaster of paris and water in bandaging Dempsey's hands to insure a 10-1 bet of $10,000 that Dempsey would win it in one round. Kearns lost, for due to a comedy of errors Dempsey won in three rounds.

Dempsey's ex-manager said the fighter was "entirely innocent of what happened."

The article quoted Dempsey as commenting, "Ridiculous! I could take an oath. In fact I will. I hope to God I die right now, and my wife and children, too, if there is any truth in what Kearns said."

Dempsey was out of town and couldn't be reached immediately for further comment.

A month ago Benny Marshall of the Birmingham News wrote that Dempsey had been doped before his first fight with Gene Tunney in Philadelphia. At the time, Dempsey said he was not sick the day of the fight but added, "a doctor told me the next day, I'd probably been given a Mickey Finn and I probably was ill for three or four days after that."

In reference to the 1919 bout, Willard, now 82, told Sports Illustrated:

"I'm glad that Kearns finally was man enough to admit it. First time Dempsey hit me, I knew the gloves were loaded. He knocked me down seven times, maybe eight. I don't recall exactly now. But every time he hit me, I could feel another bone or two breaking. I got robbed by the king of the robbers, I guess we could say. That Kearns. As long as I got robbed, I'm glad I got robbed by the best man in the country at stealing ... Nobody ever knocked me out. But I was blind. I was dazed from getting clobbered by those chunks of cement. My face was all broken, and my head was, too."

High Court Gets Plea On Insurance License

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court received an appeal Thursday from the Ohio Department of Insurance in the case of James A. Matash of Warren, whose casualty insurance license it revoked a year ago. Lower courts ordered Matash's license restored, but the Insurance Department says revocation should stand.

Matash's license was taken away upon his conviction of attempting to influence a grand jury witness. The courts overturned the revocation on grounds the department failed to file a certified copy of its proceedings with the trial court within 30 days after Matash appealed to that court.

New Football Coach Named At Boston U.

NEW YORK (AP)—An unusual trend of picking assistants, rather than experienced coaches for vacant head football coaching jobs has been the rule rather than the exception since the 1963 college season ended.

Nine top positions have been filled since the end of last season and seven have gone to assistants, two of these from pro teams.

Ara Parseghian and Marv Levy have been the exceptions. Parseghian, former head coach at Northwestern, shifted to the top spot at Notre Dame. Levy went from head coach at the University of California to the helm at William and Mary.

The elevation of Warren Schmakel, a Rutgers assistant, to head coach at Boston University Wednesday, points up this unusual trend in the postseason game of musical chairs.

During a job-hunting session at the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention just completed, one prominent coach said "It's really tough these days for an unemployed head coach to get located.

"It seems that most schools are afraid to take on a man who didn't fit at his last assignment. Also, few head coaches want to hire another former head coach as an assistant. He's afraid he might get his job."

There have been head coaching changes at 14 colleges since the end of last football season with five schools still looking for replacements. They are Washington State, Wake Forest, Ohio Wesleyan and Southern Illinois.

36 College Cagers Get Shot At Olympic Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Thirty-six college players will get a shot at the 12-man Olympic basketball team the United States sends to Tokyo next October.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association Council, in one of its last items of convention business Thursday, approved a complicated plan for college representation in the Olympic basketball trials at St. John's University here April 2-4.

The colleges will send three 12-man teams to the tournament, including one having as its nucleus six players from the national collegiate champion team to be decided at Kansas City March 20-21.

Other action by the NCAA council, at its final meeting, included:

1. A formal statement disassociating the NCAA with strong remarks made by Charles Werner, director of the U.S. Track and Field Federation, against the Amateur Athletic Union and the role of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in arbitration efforts between the warring groups last year. The council said Werner's statements "do not represent the consistent position taken by the NCAA through the history of the negotiations."

2. Frank Carver, athletic director at Pittsburgh, was named to the executive committee succeeding Richard C. Larkins, athletic director at Ohio State, who was appointed a ninth NCAA member of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

3. Appointment of six NCAA representatives to the U.S. Track and Field Federation, three to the U.S. Gymnastics Federation and three to the U.S. Basketball Federation. The three groups have been fighting with the AAU for control of their sports.

'Burg Leads At San Diego Or Does He?

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Golfer Bob Rosburg led the way into the second round of the $30,000 San Diego Open Friday —or did he?

Rosburg completed the first round with a four-under par 66, one stroke in front of National Open champion Julius Boros, Tony Lema and a newcomer to professional tournament attention, Charles Coody of Fort Worth, Tex.

But—30 golfers, stranded by darkness on the Rancho Bernardo Country Club course Thursday were set to complete their initial round early today. Included were at least three threats who could match or even outscore Rosburg. They are Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, Frank Beard, Louisville, Ky., each with nine hole scores of 33, and Dow Finsterwald, Colorado Springs, with a 34.

This trio, plus the others, faced the problem of a further delay since the weather has a habit at this time of the year of freezing the greens in the early morning hours.

They froze Thursday morning, causing an hour delay in the start, and the same was expected today, which could cause even more confusion.

There was no problem later in the day. The skies were bright, the temperature warm.

The Rancho Bernardo course, under fire for the first time in San Diego annals, apparently is none too easy. Only 20 players bettered par. A year ago, at another course and in cold, wet weather, 47 broke par.

Two shots under par were Tommy Bolt, George Knudson of Canada and Peter Butler, England's Professional Golfers Association champion who is making his American debut.

Arnold Palmer, who is a pre-tournament selection in almost any event he enters, hoped to rebound from an opening 73.

The leaders (x—amateur):

Bob Rosburg	33-33—66
Julius Boros	33-34—67
Tony Lema	33-34—67
Charles Coody	34-33—67

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of East Liverpool, State of Ohio:

SECTION 1. That it is hereby declared necessary to issue bonds of the City of East Liverpool in the principal sum of $348,393.00 for the purpose of paying the property owners' portion, in anticipation of the collection of special assessments, and the City's portion of the cost of improving St. Clair Avenue from Princeton Avenue to the north corporation line in cooperation with the Director of Highways of the State of Ohio by grading, paving including integral curbing, and draining including necessary sewers for storm water, together with the necessary appurtenances thereto, as provided in Resolution No. 22, 1963, adopted June 28, 1963. SECTION 3. That for the purpose of raising money in anticipation of the levy and collection of special assessments and of the issuance of the aforesaid bonds for the above described improvement, it is hereby declared necessary to issue and there shall be issued notes of said City in the principal amount of $348,393.00.

SECTION 4. That such anticipatory notes in the amount aforesaid shall bear interest at such rate not exceeding three per centum (3%) per annum, payable at maturity; shall be dated the date of issuance; shall mature on or before one year from said date of issuance; and shall be executed and delivered in such numbers and denominations as may be requested by the purchaser thereof.

SECTION 5. Such notes shall be executed by the Mayor and Auditor and bear the seal of the corporation. They shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the City of East Liverpool, Ohio, and shall express upon their faces the purpose for which they are issued and that they are issued pursuant to this ordinance.

SECTION 6. All assessments collected for the improvement aforesaid, and any unexpended balance remaining in the improvement fund after the costs and expenses of said improvements have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and the interest thereon until both are fully provided for.

SECTION 7. Subject to the rejection of said notes by the Treasurer as officer in charge of the Bond Retirement Fund, said notes are hereby awarded and sold to The First National Bank of East Liverpool in the amount of $173,393.00, and to the Potters Bank and Trust Co. of East Liverpool in the amount of $175,000.00, at par value thereof, in accordance with their written purchase proposals dated December 20, 1963. The par value to be received from the sale of the bonds anticipated by said notes and any excess funds resulting from the issuance of said notes shall to the extent necessary be used only for the retirement of said notes at maturity, together with interest thereon, and is hereby pledged for such purpose.

SECTION 9. In the event that such assessments are not levied or bonds are not issued to provide a fund for the payment of said notes at maturity, a general tax shall be levied against all of the property in said City for the payment of such notes and the interest thereon; provided, however, that during the year or years while such notes run there shall be levied on all the taxable property in said City, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually not less than that which would have been levied for the City's portion of said notes, if bonds had been issued therefor without the prior issue of said notes.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal and interest of said notes or the bonds in anticipation of which it is issued when and as the same falls due.

Public Informational Notice

Relocation Services for Persons to be Displaced by a Highway Improvement.

The Department of Highways, in cooperation with the Bureau of Public Roads and Jefferson County, Ohio, propose to construct a new bridge and approaches. The proposed improvement will run approx. 750 ft. in Hammondsville, O. Its project designation is S.R. 213,-15.30.

The Ohio Department of Highways, Division of Right-of-Way, have established a Relocation Office for the purpose of providing advisory and financial assistance to eligible individuals, families, (including tenants), business concerns and farms in their relocation problems that will be caused by their displacement in the clearing of the right of way for the above Federal-aid Highway project.

The advisory assistance furnished will consist of information concerning the helpful services offered by Federal, State and Municipal agencies for assisting displaced families (including tenants) to relocate. The office will also maintain listings of sale and rental properties in the area of a project for the convenience and use of such families.

Financial aid will consist of payment of moving expenses for personal property up to but not exceeding two hundred ($200.00) dollars in the case of eligible indivuals and families and up to but not exceeding three thousand ($3,-000.00) dollars in the case of eligible business concerns and farms. In the latter case an amount for mileage will be paid only within a fifty (50) mile radius within the State of Ohio. However, no relocation cost shall be payable where the business or organization moves outside the State.

This is not a notice to move. It is a public informational notice of the pendency of the project and the relocation assistance that is offered area residents. Relocation counselors will begin now to call at each occupied structure to interview an occupant of each separately occupied unit.

Further information concerning the services rendered may be obtained at the Relocation Assistance Office located 172 West High St., New Philadelphia, O. Office hours are 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Monday through Friday, Phone 20121, Ext. 63.

Public Informational Notice

Relocation Services for Persons to be Displaced by a Highway Improvement.

The Department of Highways, in cooperation with the Bureau of Public Roads and Jefferson County, Ohio, propose to construct a new bridge and approaches. The proposed improvement will run approx. 750 ft. in Hammondsville, O. Its project designation is S.R. 213,-15.30.

The Ohio Department of Highways, Division of Right-of-Way, have established a Relocation Office for the purpose of providing advisory and financial assistance to eligible individuals, families, (including tenants), business concerns and farms in their relocation problems that will be caused by their displacement in the clearing of the right of way for the above Federal-aid Highway project.

The advisory assistance furnished will consist of information concerning the helpful services offered by Federal, State and Municipal agencies for assisting displaced families (including tenants) to relocate. The office will also maintain listings of sale and rental properties in the area of a project for the convenience and use of such families.

Financial aid will consist of payment of moving expenses for personal property up to but not exceeding two hundred ($200.00) dollars in the case of eligible individuals and families and up to but not exceeding three thousand ($3,-000.00) dollars in the case of eligible business concerns and farms. In the latter case an amount for mileage will be paid only within a fifty (50) mile radius within the State of Ohio. However, no relocation cost shall be payable where the business or organization moves outside the State.

This is not a notice to move. It is a public informational notice of the pendency of the project and the relocation assistance that is offered area residents. Relocation counselors will begin now to call at each occupied structure to interview an occupant of each separately occupied unit.

Further information concerning the services rendered may be obtained at the Relocation Assistance Office located 172 West High St., New Philadelphia, O. Office hours are 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. Monday through Friday, Phone 20121, Ext. 63.

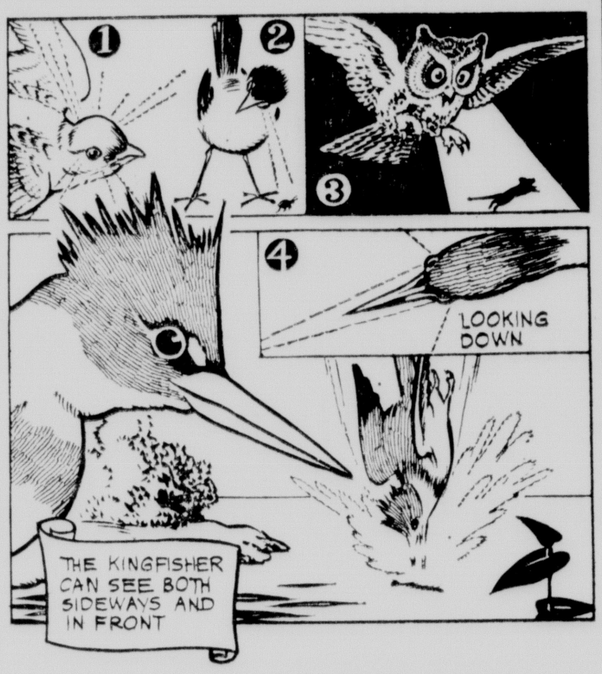
BIRDS



QUESTION: Why do most birds have eyes on the sides of their heads?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: Most animals belong either to those who hunt, or to those which are hunted. The hunters must catch prey in order to live, and their eyes are usually in the front, so they can focus together and see clearly the prey the hunter is to catch. With hunted animals the great thing is to avoid being caught; their food problems are usually solved by eating plants. So most birds, have eyes on each side (1) so they can be alert for danger coming from either side. Birds which hunt insects such as (2) can cock heir heads to one side and focus one eye on the prey. Owls are an exception to the rule that birds have eyes on the side. Hunting at night (3) they need to gather in every ray of light and to focus both eyes on such active prey as mice. So, their large eyes are set in front. The kingfisher is unusual in having both side and front views. As we see in (4) he can get a wide view as he flies looking for fish. But when he spots one, he can look straight ahead and his eyes will focus together, enabling him to see a fish so sharply he can plunge down and seize it in his beak.

★ ★ ★

FOR YOU TO DO: You may think it impossible to see two things at once as a bird does. But fix your eyes on a point straight ahead and check how far you can see on both sides.

★ ★ ★

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

DEAR FOLKS: If you want to make something different for a change that is ever so good and takes little effort, try this:

Buy some dried apricots. Put them in a great big fruit jar. Pour boiling water over them and let sit overnight. Do not put too many apricots in the jar because remember, they will swell. Fill the jar about half full of fruit.

The next day put these apricots in the refrigerator. Let them sit one more day.

By then, they will have become swollen. . . nice and juicy.

Pour the water off, put the apricots, as is, into the blender (or electric mixer) and give them a whirl.

At this time add a few spoons of sugar or a sugar substitute. You will come out with the thickest most exciting jam you have ever tasted.

If you like a wee bit of a sour taste, thinly slice four or five slivers of fresh lemon and put in the jar before pouring the boiling water over the fruit.

I have also tried this with other dried fruits such as pears and peaches. Wham, does it make a different treat for breakfast! This is wonderful when put on waffles or hotcakes.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Here are a few suggestions for the hurried mother with little children:

A finicky appetite of a sick child can be stimulated sometime by these little tricks. Keep a box of tiny colored pictures, cut from magazines. There will be pictures of a little bird, animals, flowers, automobiles, etc.

Fasten one of these pictures on the bottom of a sturdy glass or custard cup, glass cereal bowl etc. with scotch tape. The child is eager to see the picture and he eats and drinks the contents of all the glass dishes! The child really loves it.

MRS. MAURICE GORDON.

DEAR HELOISE: Too much moisture on window panes can be stopped very easily in a home that does not have a basement.

Large sheets of Pliofilm (which can be purchased inexpensively from any builders supply firm) spread out over the ground under the house will solve the problem!

Until we did this, we were bothered with so much moisture that we actually had mildewed walls behind the furniture.

READER.

Must be so. Exterminating companies wrote in that they did the same thing! Many people put their own Polyethylene plastic on the ground under the home. No more sweaty windows and most people swore that mildew was eliminated in closets! It's cheap, so sure is worth a try.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Yesterday, I successfully removed an old cod liver oil stain from one of my baby's best cotton dresses by using hydrogen peroxide.

I poured two tablespoons of peroxide in a china bowl and added a pinch of borax and applied this mixture to the stain. I let it set awhile and then laundered as usual.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: This idea came from a lumber yard (and it's a honey): They sold me a one foot square of quarter-inch masonite tempered hardboard for a kitchen cutting board. Dad rounded the edges.

This is great for cutting roasts, preparing sandwiches or salads, protecting the kitchen surface from hot pans, and so forth. It cleans easily with a soapy dish cloth. Best of all, it has no splinters and it does not hold odors!

ELLEN GREENGARD.

DEAR HELOISE: As a warning to woman who soak their venetian blinds in detergent for a long time. . . if they are soaked too long it might loosen the paint, especially if your detergent mixture is too strong.

Several of my neighbors and myself found this out to our dismay when we took our blinds out of the bathtub and the baked-on finish just slid right off and we had to buy new blinds.

AGNES JOSEPH.

Gals, this is right about soaking venetian blinds in the detergent and scouring powders. Strong ammonia will do the same thing.

Heed her word.

HELOISE.

Rockefeller Takes Bid To Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller moved his campaign into the nation's political center today after a New Hampshire foray in which he charged that Sen. Barry Goldwater underestimated the danger of communism to the United States.

The New York Republican, in one of his strongest anti-Communist declarations, asserted that Communists "believe they soon will dominate the entire world."

Free nations will be safe, he said, "only when the last vestige of communism is wiped off the face of the earth."

"I don't believe in coexistence," he declared.

Goldwater erred in stating that the Communist threat is "something we don't have to worry about," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller's remarks were in a speech to 400 members of the Associated General Contractors of New Hampshire at Manchester.

Rockefeller and Goldwater are completing for GOP delegates in the New Hampshire presidential-preference primary March 10.

In addition to his speech and question-and-answer period at the National Press Club, Rockefeller also scheduled a meeting with leaders of the District of Columbia's Republican organization and with party leaders in Washington for a meeting of the GOP National Committee.

Jacqueline Rejected As Name For Town

SOUTH HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The Township Committee voted unanimously Thursday night against a suggestion that this industrial community change its name to Jacqueline in honor of the widow of President John F. Kennedy.

It also tabled, without discussion, a resident's request to name a park after Kennedy.

I Needed The Money, Holdup Suspect Says

CINCINNATI (AP)—"I needed the money to pay my alimony," said a suspect being held in the $1,374 armed holdup of the Clifton Heights Loan & Building Association.

Donald Chester Webb, 29, was arrested an hour after the holdup Thursday as he sat in his parked car.

"I didn't really want to do this fellows. The gun isn't even loaded," officers quoted Webb as saying during the holdup. They said he forced an employe to put the money into an envelope.

Police said they found the loot in an unopened envelope in Webb's car along with a loaded .25 caliber revolver.

Commission Aide Talks To BPW On Master Plan

Don Eckert, chairman of the East Liverpool Planning Commission, spoke on the proposed master plan at the dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club Wednesday night at Travelers Hotel. Places were arranged for 50.

A member of the commission for the past six years, he was recently elected to another six-year term.

He discussed the formation of the master plan, emphasizing the need of co-operation of all residents to make it a success. Phases include housing and urban renewal, population trends and preparation of base maps for land use.

He explained aerial maps which were tacked on the wall. The group received city maps. A question - and - answer period followed. Eckert was introduced by Mrs. Mary Ruth Bebout, chairman of the civic participation committee, which arranged the program.

Mrs. Doris McKinnon, president, opened business with timely quotations. Miss Helen Auld, treasurer, read the financial report.

The group was commended for arranging colorful displays in the vacant storeroom windows under the direction of Mrs. Bebout.

Named to committees of the City Federation of Women's Clubs were Mrs. Betty Reed and Mrs. Sally Mase, social; Mrs. Edna Jones and Mrs. Mary Franklin, project; Mrs. Bebout, town improvement, and Mrs. Lillie Belle Leonard, decorations.

Miss Alberta Abrams was named chairman to arrange an observance for International Night between Feb. 16-22, as suggested by the national committee.

Groups to meet in the conference room of The Review are the membership committee on Feb. 14 and the Executive Board Feb. 28.

Mrs. Ethel Lynn Wambaugh, state personal development chairman, will attend the board sessions Jan. 17-19 at the new Columbus Plaza in Columbus.

Mrs. Dorothy Crooks spoke on the annual Mothers March for the March of Dimes Fund.

The tables were decorated by Mrs. Josephine Kimble, Mrs. Mary Franklin and Mrs. Dorothy Evans. Large snowmen were used as centerpieces on the blue maline which was touched with snowballs. Blue and white tapers in crystal holders completed the setting. Decorative pieces of ironstone were used on the head table. Favors were miniature boxes of chocolates.

Mrs. Virginia Manypenny presented gifts to those celebrating their birthday anniversaries this month.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

DEAR FOLKS: If you want to make something different for a change that is ever so good and takes little effort, try this:

Buy some dried apricots. Put them in a great big fruit jar. Pour boiling water over them and let sit overnight. Do not put too many apricots in the jar because remember, they will swell. Fill the jar about half full of fruit.

The next day put these apricots in the refrigerator. Let them sit one more day.

By then, they will have become swollen. . . nice and juicy.

Pour the water off, put the apricots, as is, into the blender (or electric mixer) and give them a whirl.

At this time add a few spoons of sugar or a sugar substitute. You will come out with the thickest most exciting jam you have ever tasted.

If you like a wee bit of a sour taste, thinly slice four or five slivers of fresh lemon and put in the jar before pouring the boiling water over the fruit.

I have also tried this with other dried fruits such as pears and peaches. Wham, does it make a different treat for breakfast! This is wonderful when put on waffles or hotcakes.

DEAR HELOISE: Here are a few suggestions for the hurried mother with little children:

A finicky appetite of a sick child can be stimulated sometime by these little tricks. Keep a box of tiny colored pictures, cut from magazines. There will be pictures of a little bird, animals, flowers, automobiles, etc.

Fasten one of these pictures on the bottom of a sturdy glass or custard cup, glass cereal bowl etc. with scotch tape. The child is eager to see the picture and he eats and drinks the contents of all the glass dishes! The child really loves it.

MRS. MAURICE GORDON.

DEAR HELOISE: Too much moisture on window panes can be stopped very easily in a home that does not have a basement.

Large sheets of Pliofilm (which can be purchased inexpensively from any builders supply firm) spread out over the ground under the house will solve the problem!

Until we did this, we were bothered with so much moisture that we actually had mildewed walls behind the furniture.

READER.

Must be so. Exterminating companies wrote in that they did the same thing! Many people put their own Polyethylene plastic on the ground under the home. No more sweaty windows and most people swore that mildew was eliminated in closets! It's cheap, so sure is worth a try.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Yesterday, I successfully removed an old cod liver oil stain from one of my baby's best cotton dresses by using hydrogen peroxide.

I poured two tablespoons of peroxide in a china bowl and added a pinch of borax and applied this mixture to the stain. I let it set awhile and then laundered as usual.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: This idea came from a lumber yard (and it's a honey): They sold me a one foot square of quarter-inch masonite tempered hardboard for a kitchen cutting board. Dad rounded the edges.

This is great for cutting roasts, preparing sandwiches or salads, protecting the kitchen surface from hot pans, and so forth. It cleans easily with a soapy dish cloth. Best of all, it has no splinters and it does not hold odors!

ELLEN GREENGARD.

DEAR HELOISE: As a warning to woman who soak their venetian blinds in detergent for a long time. . . if they are soaked too long it might loosen the paint, especially if your detergent mixture is too strong.

Several of my neighbors and myself found this out to our dismay when we took our blinds out of the bathtub and the baked-on finish just slid right off and we had to buy new blinds.

AGNES JOSEPH.

Gals, this is right about soaking venetian blinds in the detergent and scouring powders. Strong ammonia will do the same thing.

Heed her word.

HELOISE.

Rockefeller Takes Bid To Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller moved his campaign into the nation's political center today after a New Hampshire foray in which he charged that Sen. Barry Goldwater underestimated the danger of communism to the United States.

The New York Republican, in one of his strongest anti-Communist declarations, asserted that Communists "believe they soon will dominate the entire world."

Free nations will be safe, he said, "only when the last vestige of communism is wiped off the face of the earth."

"I don't believe in coexistence," he declared.

Goldwater erred in stating that the Communist threat is "something we don't have to worry about," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller's remarks were in a speech to 400 members of the Associated General Contractors of New Hampshire at Manchester.

Rockefeller and Goldwater are completing for GOP delegates in the New Hampshire presidential-preference primary March 10.

In addition to his speech and question-and-answer period at the National Press Club, Rockefeller also scheduled a meeting with leaders of the District of Columbia's Republican organization and with party leaders in Washington for a meeting of the GOP National Committee.

Jacqueline Rejected As Name For Town

SOUTH HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The Township Committee voted unanimously Thursday night against a suggestion that this industrial community change its name to Jacqueline in honor of the widow of President John F. Kennedy.

It also tabled, without discussion, a resident's request to name a park after Kennedy.

I Needed The Money, Holdup Suspect Says

CINCINNATI (AP)—"I needed the money to pay my alimony," said a suspect being held in the $1,374 armed holdup of the Clifton Heights Loan & Building Association.

Donald Chester Webb, 29, was arrested an hour after the holdup Thursday as he sat in his parked car.

"I didn't really want to do this fellows. The gun isn't even loaded," officers quoted Webb as saying during the holdup. They said he forced an employe to put the money into an envelope.

Police said they found the loot in an unopened envelope in Webb's car along with a loaded .25 caliber revolver.

Commission Aide Talks To BPW On Master Plan

Don Eckert, chairman of the East Liverpool Planning Commission, spoke on the proposed master plan at the dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club Wednesday night at Travelers Hotel. Places were arranged for 50.

A member of the commission for the past six years, he was recently elected to another six-year term.

He discussed the formation of the master plan, emphasizing the need of co-operation of all residents to make it a success. Phases include housing and urban renewal, population trends and preparation of base maps for land use.

He explained aerial maps which were tacked on the wall. The group received city maps. A question - and - answer period followed. Eckert was introduced by Mrs. Mary Ruth Bebout, chairman of the civic participation committee, which arranged the program.

Mrs. Doris McKinnon, president, opened business with timely quotations. Miss Helen Auld, treasurer, read the financial report.

The group was commended for arranging colorful displays in the vacant storeroom windows under the direction of Mrs. Bebout.

Named to committees of the City Federation of Women's Clubs were Mrs. Betty Reed and Mrs. Sally Mase, social; Mrs. Edna Jones and Mrs. Mary Franklin, project; Mrs. Bebout, town improvement, and Mrs. Lillie Belle Leonard, decorations.

Miss Alberta Abrams was named chairman to arrange an observance for International Night between Feb. 16-22, as suggested by the national committee.

Groups to meet in the conference room of The Review are the membership committee on Feb. 14 and the Executive Board Feb. 28.

Mrs. Ethel Lynn Wambaugh, state personal development chairman, will attend the board sessions Jan. 17-19 at the new Columbus Plaza in Columbus.

Mrs. Dorothy Crooks spoke on the annual Mothers March for the March of Dimes Fund.

The tables were decorated by Mrs. Josephine Kimble, Mrs. Mary Franklin and Mrs. Dorothy Evans. Large snowmen were used as centerpieces on the blue maline which was touched with snowballs. Blue and white tapers in crystal holders completed the setting. Decorative pieces of ironstone were used on the head table. Favors were miniature boxes of chocolates.
